

POLICE WILL SEIZE SLOT MACHINES AS GAMBLING DEVICES

Ordered Also to Confiscate
Baffle Boards Where Prizes for Scores Are Posted.

REMEMBERS FRAMES POLICY AT HEARING

Research Officer Reports
Owners of Slug Contrivances Make $26.50
Profit on $50.

Mint-vending slot machines which return money or slugs are to be considered gambling devices and will be seized by police on sight, President Remmers of the Board of Police Commissioners ruled yesterday after a hearing.

Baffle boards, Remmers said, are not in themselves gambling devices, but may be confiscated whenever they are attached to them a notice of prizes offered for high scores. The owners of these boards, however, may offer a prize for the highest score made during the day. Remmers said, and this will be considered to be gambling.

His ruling came after he had ordered eight slot machines and a baffle board destroyed as gambling devices. Police testified they had seized each of the slot machines, containing mints and slugs, and that in each case the person in charge of the establishment in which the machine was found had refused to return the slugs for merchandise. They were told that the slugs might be played back into the machine "for their amusement" in striving to achieve certain combinations on the revolving drums.

No Winnings for Police.

The baffle board ordered destroyed had attached to it a chart showing prizes of from 10 cents to $5 for various scores. Police played it several times but failed to get a winning score.

Baffle boards are played by propelling marbles out of a chute onto an inclined plane on which are distributed obstructions and holes into which the marbles may fall. The holes are numbered variously according to the difficulty of getting the marbles past the obstruction in front of them. Many of these boards have been placed in stores, hotel lobbies and other places where persons congregate.

All but one of the slot machines ordered destroyed yesterday was of the nickel type which returns a package of mints for each five cent piece inserted. The mints, it was brought out, cost the owners of the machines anything from 90 cents for 100 packages to 2 cents a package. One machine was to be seized with quarters, and returned a package of the same sort of mints, and, sometimes, slugs of the same size as quarters.

Tax on Machines.

In his ruling Remmers took note of the annual $5 license tax on slot machines passed by the Board of Aldermen several months ago as a means of raising unemployment relief funds.

This ordinance is inartificially drawn," Remmers said, "in that it cannot tax a device declared unlawful by the statute of the State. I ask the department to see that all lawful machines show a sign from the license collector that the tax has been paid. All others are to be seized."

Several of the slot machines had been taken apart by Thomas Lewis, research officer of the Police Department, and the mechanism exposed. Lewis had calculated the odds against winning on the machines, and figured that the owners got 15¢ out of every $50 played into them.

In arriving at that figure he assumed that the mints cost 1¢, and that the slugs would be redeemed by a simple change in the device, Lewis said, the machines might be made to return coins instead of slugs.

The player of the machine, Lewis said, had one chance in 1000 of winning the combination which had 20 slugs, two chances of getting 16 slugs, four chances of getting 12 slugs, chances of getting eight, 24 chances of getting four and 18 chances of getting two. The drums were so arranged, he said, that half of the apparently winning combinations were blanks, that is, the drums could never stop in those positions.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR GROUP PLANS CUT IN WORKING HOURS

Governing Body Considers Italy's Proposal for World Parley to Spread Out Jobs—40-Hour Week Suggested.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 21.—A special session of the governing body of the International Labor Office was convened today to consider a proposal for a special meeting of the International Labor Conference to discuss a reduction of working hours in industry.

Today's extraordinary meeting, summoned at the request of Italy, is a move to reduce unemployment by "spreading out" available employment among a greater number of workers. Italy suggests that working hours be reduced by international agreement to a maximum of 40 hours a week.

The United States Government and the American Federation of Labor have indicated a move to reduce the working week to five days, but, of course, the American Government has no power to regulate working hours in private industry.

The International Labor Conference at a regular meeting this year adopted a resolution affirming the necessity of putting an end to unemployment by reducing hours of work without reducing wages.

The proposal which the governing body is considering is that a special international labor conference be held "in the next few months, before the crisis becomes worse and before the world economic conference is convened, to draw up proposals which could be put into immediate operation as regards hours of work."

The Italian Government suggests the proposed reduction of working hours be permanent.

STOCKS ADVANCE $5 TO $7; 4,000,000 SHARES PURCHASED

Cotton Goes Up $2.50 a Bale and Wheat 2 1/2 Cents a Bushel.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The stock market climbed upward today and net gains of $5 to $7 and larger were numerous in leading shares, while on the commodity exchanges cotton advanced more than $2.50 a bale and wheat jumped 2 1/2 cents a bushel.

Sales of stocks exceeded 4,000,000 shares, more than triple yesterday's volume. The market, strong from the opening, gained momentum in the last hour and closing prices were virtually at the top.

Traders who had sold short on the recent reaction found themselves badly trapped and bought their way out at swiftly advancing prices.

Rail steel, utility, farm implement and chemical issues were particularly spectacular, but few important stocks in other divisions showed gains of less than 12.

United States Steel issues were headliners in the buying. The common shares closed $8 higher at $45.50 while the preferred went up $11 for the largest individual gain of the session.

American Telephone climbed $8.25 net to $116.50 and J. I. Case $10, net, to $56. Santa Fe Railroad's gain was $5.62, the final price being $57. American Can shot up $7 to $57.75, and Union Pacific $1.62 to $30.

TRAPPED FOREST FIRE FIGHTERS SAVED BY JUMPING INTO CREEK

Nineteen Men Spend Hours in Water; Finally Cut Way Through Flames.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Sept. 21.—Heat so intense knives and forks of camping equipment were melted was described today by J. A. Morrow, leader of a crew of 19 fire fighters who narrowly escaped when trapped by flames in the Santa Barbara forest.

Morrow said the group hardly had pitched camp last Thursday morning when a wind sprang up, spread the flames out of control and swept the fire on them. For five days they fought desperately, without food or sleep, and escaped only because of a nearby creek, in which they spent hours.

Monday night, he said, the flames died down slowly and, risking serious burns, they plunged into the brush with picks, finally succeeding in cutting their way through the fire and escaping to the safety of Juncal Dam.

BOY AND GIRL BLINDED BY BOMB EXPLOSION

Walking in Chicago Street When Missile Thrown at Judge's Home Bursts.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—A boy and girl, each 16 years old, were in a hospital today, mangled and possibly blinded for life, as the result of an attempt to bomb the home of Superior Court Judge John P. McGorty.

Meanwhile, police were searching for James "Fur" Sammons, ex-convict, "public enemy," and reputed machine gunner for the Capone Syndicate, who was sent back to the penitentiary in 1931 by Judge McGorty only to be released on a writ of habeas corpus by another Judge.

Judge McGorty and members of his family escaped injury, although the bomb, tossed last night from a slowly moving automobile, shattered windows in his house, tore a hole in the sidewalk, and shook the neighborhood.

The injured boy and girl, Lee W. Koepken and Ada Meyer, were walking in the neighborhood of Judge McGorty's home on the South Side last night. The bomb car passed them as they neared the occupants' house. They did not see the occupants' house. They did not see the occupants' house.

The bomb, police conjectured, hit a fence in front of Judge McGorty's house and bounded back on the sidewalk.

As Koepken and the girl walked past the McGorty residence the youth saw what appeared to be a burning package on the sidewalk. He kicked at it. The bomb exploded. The boy and the girl were hurled to one side, blinded, in addition to other serious injuries.

They were rushed to a hospital by members of Judge McGorty's family.

The girl, mother of a 4-month-old baby, was recently separated from her husband.

Sammons was returned to the penitentiary when Judge McGorty held he had been improperly released on parole.

SAYS LATE S. W. STRAUS GOT $500,000 FREE RENT AT HOTEL

New York Attorney-General Would Bar Security Sale Under Certain Conditions.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—A charge that the late S. W. Straus occupied rent free for the last 10 years of his life the twelfth floor of the Hotel Ambassador, with a loss of revenue to the hotel of $500,000, was made by the Attorney-General yesterday in an application for an injunction to restrain S. W. Straus & Co. from selling securities under certain conditions.

The complaint, based on an affidavit by William H. Peterkin, former chief accountant of the Ambassador Hotel Corporation, also said Straus bore his death, assigned to his wife the furnishings of the suite which cost the hotel between $200,000 and $300,000.

Joseph M. Peckbauer, representing the Straus interests, maintained that the suite was given to Straus for services he performed for the hotel and denied there was any intention of misusing the bondholders' money.

Assistant Attorney-General Lazarus Joseph, asserting there was evidence of fraud, told the Court that a bond had been sold on a building at 245 Broadway, New York, and that the buyer had not been informed that there were unpaid taxes of $150,000 on the building.

PROMOTER'S BODY SOUGHT IN RIVER; CLOTHING FOUND

Anthony L. Kramer, Under Bond for Fraud in Movie Venture, Starts for Swim and Disappears.

WARNED WATER WAS TOO COLD

Quoted by Friends at Meramec Clubhouse As Saying: 'I Don't Care What Happens to Me.'

The Meramec River is being searched for the body of Anthony L. Kramer, whose clothes were found Monday night on the river bank near Fern Glen soon after he had told a friend that he intended to go swimming.

Kramer, promoter of Kismet Sound Films, Inc., a talking picture advertising venture which came to grief a year ago before it got started, was under bond, charged with obtaining property under false pretenses in that deal.

He visited a clubhouse near Fern Glen Monday evening, and on leaving told a friend that he intended first to swim for a time and then to go to Drake, about a mile away.

The friend told Constable Weiss of Bonhomme Township he had warned Kramer against going into the water, reminding him that it was cold and dangerous, but Kramer, he said, replied: "I don't care what happens to me."

Brother Identifies Clothing.

The clothing found on the river bank contained a bill from the Lincoln Hotel, 2226 Olive street, made out to Frank Meyers. In the hotel room, however, Weiss found information which led him to believe that the owner of the clothing was Kramer.

This was confirmed by Bernard Kramer Jr., 2117 Utah street, a brother of the missing man, who identified the clothing. Bernard Kramer said his brother had lived until a week ago with his parents on Utah street, and had visited there Sunday. He did not know where his brother had been living after he left home.

The man who registered as Meyers went to the Lincoln Hotel last Thursday and left Monday about 5 p. m., but did not check out. He has not returned. The description of "Meyers" and Kramer tally generally.

The Kismet Movie Venture.

Kramer, 26 years old, was a musician before Kismet Sound Films, Inc., engaged his attention a year ago. Since the failure of that enterprise he had been unemployed. Kismet Sound Films, Inc., fitted out an elaborate office and studio at 2139 Olive street, at a cost of $10,000, but lack of financial resources prevented it from opening its doors. Associated with Kramer were Phil Jay Silverman, aerial photographer, and Dal Jackson, the late endurance flyer.

GANDHI SUBMITS TERMS ON WHICH HE WILL END FAST

Indian Leaders from Bombay Offer Compromise Plan; He Summons Chief of 'Untouchables.'

APPEARS FAMISHED OTHERWISE WELL

Mahatma Says Hunger Will Soon Pass, Then He Will Drink Water to Prolong Life.

By the Associated Press.

POONA, Sept. 21.—Indian political leaders from Bombay visited Mahatma Gandhi in his cell at Yeroda jail today and submitted to him a plan for a compromise of the communal elections question which they hoped would end the hunger strike he began yesterday.

When they left, although no formal statement was made, the belief was expressed that Gandhi's fast would be ended before many days.

The group included Gandhi's son, Devji Das, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and M. Jayakar.

Gandhi was up early today and showed little effect from his abstinence which began at noon yesterday.

The plan presented to him included a suggestion for joint elections, with proper safeguards for the "untouchables," in whose interest he declared he would starve himself to death.

At Gandhi's invitation the leader of the "untouchables" planned to come to Poona tonight to meet Gandhi.

Urges Speed in Parleying.

"Mr Gandhi appears famished, but otherwise he is well," said Rajah Gopal Acharya, acting president of the Indian National Congress, after visiting the Mahatma. "After 10 days without food his condition will probably be so weak that he will be unable to participate in further discussions."

There are only five days in which to reach an agreement on the issue of separate electorates, and only a day or two to obtain the approval of the Prime Minister, which is essential before Gandhi will break his fast. After 10 days he might be so ill that he never would recover, although possibly he might live for 25 days.

Gandhi is 61 years old. At the start of his fast yesterday he weighed 84 pounds. For years he subsisted chiefly on goat's milk.

Gandhi's fast is in protest against the electoral system recently drawn up by the British Cabinet and announced by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald. Gandhi contends that this plan perpetuates the wide gulf that separates the "untouchables" from other classes in Indian life.

Made Head of Prison Bakery.

As he began his fast yesterday, he smilingly announced that he had been appointed superintendent of the prison bakery.

He became ill from the press of friends who called to see him. On the advice of his physicians, he turned away many callers.

After a few days, he said, he expected the desire for food to pass and he then expected to prolong his life as much as possible by drinking water.

"It is only because Englishmen cannot possibly see the living side of the picture," he said, "that, either in their ignorance or their self-satisfaction, they act as judges on a question affecting the fundamental feelings of millions of people, both caste Hindus and 'untouchables,' the suppressors and the suppressed."

"Like the prophet of Islam and like Jesus, I, on a humbler scale, have undertaken a struggle for justice, as my fast continues my human cry will rise to the heavens of God Almighty."

"My fast is not for sympathy. After the first few days the desire for food will vanish and I shall begin to brood. All my interest will be withdrawn from externals, and I shall become one with the cause."

"Be assured, however, that I shall make a superhuman effort to retain my grip on life. I am anxious as anybody to continue to live."

"There is nothing like water for prolonging life and I shall partake of it whenever I require it, and hope to carry on until the Hindu conscience awakens."

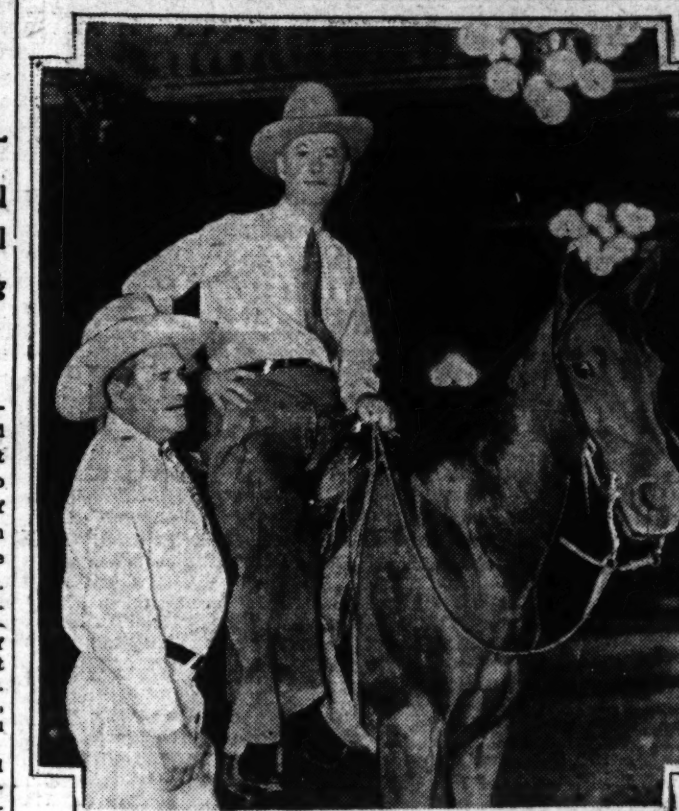

Hindu Castes and Depressed Classes Reported in Compromise.

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 21.—Gov. Philip F. La Follette, 25-year-old heir to the leadership of Wisconsin's Progressive political movement, was defeated at the polls yesterday in a primary election upset that broke a line of La Follette political victories dating back 40 years.

A majority of the voters in the Republican primary gave the nomination for the governorship to Walter J. Kohler, a Conservative whom La Follette defeated two years ago.

Returns from 2795 precincts out of 2899 gave Kohler 401,678; La Follette 307,336.

Kohler is a wealthy manufacturer who lives in a little village that embraces his large factories and bears his name. He was introduced to politics in 1928 when he was elected a delegate-at-large to the Republican National convention. The governorship is the only public office he has ever held and he occupied that from 1928 to 1930.

Just two years ago the present Governor overwhelmed Kohler by a plurality of 127,000.

First Defeat Since 1892.

Yesterday the first time since 1892 that the La Follette name has been voted down. In that year the Governor's father, the late Senator Robert M. La Follette, was beaten in a congressional race. It was rumored in advance of the primary that if La Follette was not re-nominated, he would run as an independent.

Senator John J. Blaine, Progressive veteran, seeking re-nomination, apparently was defeated by John B. Chapple, young conservative, by approximately 20,000.

The vote on the senatorship in 2718 precincts out of 2899 was: Chapple, 521,251; Blaine, 511,888.

"Turning Point in Wisconsin." Chapple, commenting on his nomination, said:

"The defeat of La Follette marks a turning point not alone in the history of Wisconsin but of the nation. The people of Wisconsin have decided to go back the upward road toward an even finer American civilization."

Gov. La Follette today issued the following statement:

"At the close of the campaign, I said, as I say now, the issues involved transcended personalities or the political fate of any individual. These issues involve the right of the average man to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Greater men than any now living gave their lives to the advancement of that cause and went to temporary defeat fighting for its principles."

"I am enlisted in the progressive movement for life. In or out of public office, I shall do all in my power to advance the principles for which it stands. This contest will go on until it is won."

The issue that resounded most from the Progressive stump was summed up in the statement that Wisconsin will need $20,000,000 for unemployment relief next year and in the question, "Who is going to pay the bill?"

Taxation of Wisconsin corporation dividends was urged by La Follette. He said that income taxpayers would have to meet relief costs on a graduated scale if he and his faction were kept in power.

"Cut Costs With Kohler." "Cut costs with Kohler" was the slogan of the Kohler ticket. Kohler accused the Governor of extravagance, attacked the administration of the grade crossing relief program as inefficient and proposed

INDICTED MAN WON'T TESTIFY IN DAVIS TRIAL

Theodore G. Miller, Called in Alleged Lottery Case, Stands on His Constitutional Rights.

SENATOR APPROVED BALL FOR CHARITY

Moore Officer Says, However, Davis Was Not Told of Drawing—'None of His Business.'

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Theodore G. Miller, who is himself under indictment for alleged lottery offenses, refused to testify today at the trial on similar charges of United States Senator James J. Davis.

"I am mentioned in these indictments," he said, "and I must stand on my constitutional rights. Any answer I might make may tend to incriminate me."

Miller was asked about the books of the Moore propagation department, which it is alleged conducted the so-called lotteries, but refused to make any answer beyond saying: "They degrade and incriminate me."

"You mean they tend to incriminate," the judge corrected him. He was excused for the time being. Davis is on trial alone, having obtained a severance of his trial from that of Miller and five others so that he might clear the matter up before the November elections at which he is running for re-election to the Senate.

Couldn't Bring the Books. Henry W. Busch of Detroit, Commissioner of Parks and Boulevards there, and the supreme dictator of the Loyal Order of Moose, testified that a proposal to employ professional solicitors to raise funds for the Detroit convention in 1929 was objected to by Davis. The latter, he said, sent Theodore G. Miller to Detroit to raise the money.

"Did Mr. Miller get a percentage of the money?" asked Treadwell. "I wouldn't say a percentage."

It was then Miller was called and refused to testify. Clara Kenney, the next witness, said she was a bookkeeper for the propagation department, keeping the "accounts receivable" books. She said she was subpoenaed to "bring the books," but said "they were Mr. Miller's books and he wouldn't let me have them."

Melvin Carnahan, an auditor for the Fidelity Trust Co. of Pittsburgh, brought books with him. He read from a ledger sheet a record of a $150,000 collateral note guaranteed by James J. Davis. He said payment of $100,000 was made on Jan. 9, 1931.

It was brought out through Carnahan that on Oct. 1, 1930, $150,000 was loaned to the organization department on a note guaranteed by Davis. On the same day two checks were drawn on the department's account for $127,418.90 and for $155.35.

At the same time, it was shown, there was owing on the account of Mrs. Jean R. Davis $127,418.90 with interest of $453.33. Both of these were paid on that day, the books showed.

On Jan. 9, 1931, it was brought out, $100,000 was paid on the Moore organization note in three checks signed by Fred W. Jones, chairman of the department, official Carnahan said that $50,000 of the $100,000 was paid in cash.

Rodney H. Brandon, Public Welfare Director of Illinois and former supreme dictator of the Moose, was accused by the Government of changing his grand jury testimony when he took the stand.

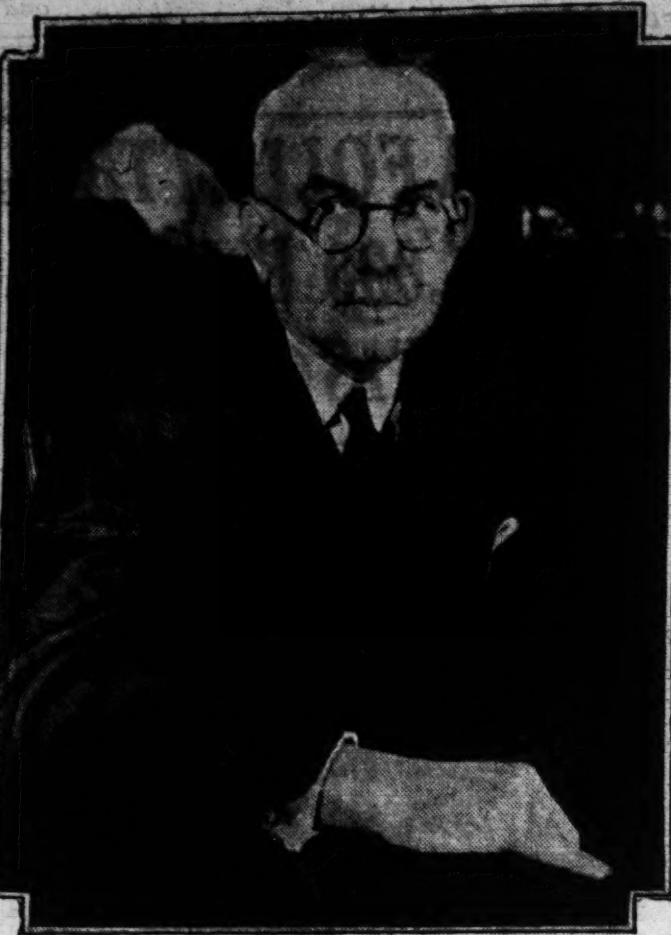

Later Brandon testified he withheld information about a prize held in connection with the 1930 Moose charity ball from Davis because it was "none of his business."

Assistant United States Attorney Louis M. Treadwell, acting as chief prosecutor, sought to show, through questioning Brandon, that Davis had approved an alleged lottery in connection with the 1930 charity ball of the Moose.

Brandon said he attended the 1930 prize drawing but that Davis was not present although he saw him at a luncheon later.

Says "I Don't Remember." "Did Senator Davis say anything about the charity ball?" Treadwell asked. "I don't remember," the witness replied, and the prosecutor handed him a transcript of the minutes of the grand jury before which he testified and which in-

HOOVER TO TALK ON FARM ILLS AT DES MOINES OCT. 4

President, However, Will Also Discuss Other Issues in Speech, One of 3 in Campaign.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The campaign speech to be delivered by President Hoover in Des Moines on Oct. 4 will embrace other issues as well as the agricultural situation.

This was disclosed today at the White House, where it was said that while the difficulties of farmers doubtless would provide a focal point for the address, the President would not restrict himself to the topic.

During the morning Mr. Hoover kept in touch with political affairs. Secretary of the Treasury Mills, one of his most constant advisers, reported after more than an hour with Mr. Hoover that "the general political situation" had been discussed, including the primary balloting of yesterday.

Of the heavy pluries piled up in Wisconsin against Gov. Phillip F. La Follette and Senator Blaine, Mills said: "There may be something refreshing in this. It may show that the hat and rabbit act is not so popular, or that you don't have to be a radical to win."

Mills said he felt sure the President would adhere to his original schedule of making only three campaign speeches, two of them in the West.

The announcement of Hoover's first campaign speech was made by E. V. Sanders, chairman of the Republican National Committee, in a formal statement. It came after a week of conferences that began with the Maine election and included a statement by Sanders on the White House steps Sunday night that "the most vigorous possible speaking campaign" was planned.

Sanders' announcement said: "President Hoover will make his first speech of the campaign at Des Moines, Ia., on the evening of Tuesday, Oct. 4. Arrangements for a nation-wide radio hook-up are being made."

"The President will return immediately to Washington after his speech. He will make no other addresses or statements, and the place of other addresses by the President have not yet been arranged."

So far as official announcements are concerned, the President's speaking plans still contemplate two addresses in the West and one in the East. For his supporters, including Secretaries Stimson, Mills, Hurley and Hyde—more extensive tours are being planned by the Republican Committee.

O. G. Peteler, 7010 Etzel avenue, University City, father of the husband, testified the marriage was performed without his consent. The girl's father gave similar testimony.

Mrs. MYRTLE BLACKLOGG SUEW. Policeman's Wife Seeks $50,000 in Alienation Action.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Myrtle Blacklogg, former Illinois Internal Revenue Collector for Northern Illinois, was made defendant in a $100,000 damage suit filed today by Mrs. Susanne Nottingham.

Mrs. Nottingham alleged Mrs. Blacklogg alienated the affections of her husband Norman E. Nottingham, a policeman.

Mrs. Blacklogg resigned from the revenue post in January, 1931, after publication of the far-spread in which she lost $50,000 at Springfield, Ill. The money had been borrowed from Edward R. Litsinger, a political leader. She afterward brought suit against Litsinger for $150,000, alleging defamation because of his public statement concerning the game. The suit has not come to trial.

BARS PARTY LEVIES ON MEN IN STATE ROAD DEPARTMENT

Chief Engineer Says, However, That Voluntary Contributions May Be Made.

By the Associated Press. Special to the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON, Sept. 21.—The 2367 regular employees and 4575 part-time employees of the Missouri State Highway Department will not be required to pay any assessments to the campaign funds of either of the major political parties, and no such assessments or solicitation of employees for payments will be permitted by the department, Chief Highway Engineer T. H. Cutler said today.

This policy is a continuation of one followed in recent years by the State Highway Commission. Cutler said any employee was free to make voluntary contributions to a campaign fund if he chose to do so.

This policy is a continuation of one followed in recent years by the State Highway Commission. Cutler said any employee was free to make voluntary contributions to a campaign fund if he chose to do so.

The Governor also abolished another practice followed in recent years of requiring Democrats in some of the bipartisan departments to make the same contribution to the Republican political chest as was exacted from Republican employees. The Governor gave instructions to his department heads that no Democrat in their department was to be solicited for contributions.

HULEN WARNS DEMOCRATS AGAINST OVER-CONFIDENCE. Missouri Chairman Tells County Leaders Republicans Are Making Quiet, Subtle Fight.

Rubey M. Hulen, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, warned county chairmen in a meeting at the Marquette Hotel today against over-confidence.

"I warn you that the Republican organization of this State is not asleep," he said. "Reports are coming to me from all over the State that they are engaged in a quiet, subtle campaign in every county. The Republican organization, financed bountifully for every demand, will be perfected by election day. One of their stock tricks is to lure the local Democratic organization into inactivity by predicting huge Democratic majorities, thereby keeping large numbers from the polls on election day."

He said both the Democratic and Republican national organizations would make a hard fight in Missouri because of the election of 13 Congressmen at large.

The Republican State Committee is installing its campaign organization this week in offices in the Railway Exchange Building. State Chairman Arthur M. Curtis will be in charge. D. D. McDonald of Jefferson City will be director of publicity.

The district extends from the Mississippi River to Morganford Road and from O'Connell street south to the City Limits. Capt. McQuire ordered his men to record the number of unlicensed dogs because of an increasing number of complaints from persons bitten by dogs.

THAMMANY LOSES FIGHT TO ELECT MAYOR THIS FALL. Court Rules McKee Shall Hold Office As Walker's Successor in New York Until November, 1933.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Mayor Joseph V. McKee won his fight today to prevent a majority election in November.

When McKee recently became Mayor on the resignation of James J. Walker during an ouster hearing at Albany the city clerk certified to a "vacancy" in the office which he held should be filled by a special election in connection with this year's general election.

The regular majority election is not to be held until next year. McKee had a court action started to prevent a special election, an action which was opposed by Tammany Hall and other organizations. Today Supreme Court Justice John McHugh announced his decision that there should be no majority election and that McKee should stay in office until the time of the regular election a year from November.

tax-law changes which he said would save general property taxpayers $16,000,000.

Mayor A. G. Schmiedeman of Madison appears to have been nominated by the Democrats to oppose Kohler in November. With 12,095 votes, he was leading William B. Rubin of Milwaukee, who had 11,818 and Leo P. Fox of Chicago with 11,718.

The combined Republican and Democratic vote is expected to reach close to 900,000, a new record for Wisconsin.

Chapple was a candidate for the first time. A year ago he appeared as a critic of the University of Wisconsin and of what he termed the "LaFollette political racket."

He took to task the Governor, the president of the university, Glenn Frank, certain members of the faculty and members of the official family of Gov. LaFollette. He published a little red book which accused LaFollette and his associates of having connections with organizations and movements that foster socialism and communism.

He went to the State University campus on several occasions and had verbal skirmishes with large crowds of students who turned out to heckle him. He propounded arguments that the American

WISCONSIN WINNER FATHER COX STRANDED ON CAMPAIGN TOUR

Jobless Ticket's Nominee, Funds Exhausted, Unable to Leave Tucuman, N. M.

By the Associated Press. TUCUMAN, N. M., Sept. 21.—Father James E. Cox, bit Pittsburgh, candidate on the Jobs ticket for President, was stranded here today with a party of 10 on his national campaign tour.

Father Cox said they had exhausted their funds. He asserted Dr. Victor Tisdal, candidate for Vice-President on the ticket, had promised to send a plane for him and he will return to Pittsburgh for a conference. Other members of the party will remain here until additional funds have been raised.

The party was touring the country by automobile and raising funds for the campaign in the cities where they stopped.

"Towns are so scarce in this part of the country we were unable to make sufficient funds to travel between them," Father Cox said.

The party was housed in a cabin here and Father Cox said it was provided with food. The tour started four weeks ago. They were en route to San Francisco.

Father Cox was nominated for President at a meeting in St. Louis recently.

home, the American order must be preserved, that athletes should be driven out of the university.

He talked unsuccessfully to meet Senator Blaine in debate. Blaine never discussed Chapple or the issues he raised. He limited his campaign address to his record in the Senate and to progressive policies and frequently to the State ticket exclusively.

Incomplete returns from the 10 congressional districts indicated four Progressive Republican incumbents will be re-nominated, a fifth Progressive will win, three Progressives will be defeated, two Progressives and two stalwarts will face a very close decision, one conservative incumbent will be re-nominated, one will be defeated and one conservative, seeking elevation from the State Senate to Congress, will be nominated.

In the Fifth District (Milwaukee County) with five candidates in the race, Joseph A. Padway, carrying the LaFollette endorsement, was leading Congressman William H. Stafford, conservative. The vote in 52 out of 53 districts: Padway, 327; Stafford, 275.

Bernard F. Dickmann, president of the Real Estate Exchange, was at the committee meeting, and said that, if the bond issue burden were placed on the special taxes, the exchange would withdraw its objections, and would favor the bond issue.

The committee also discussed the possibility that the entire $4,600,000 might not be needed, and it was agreed that bonds would be issued only for the amount actually needed for relief. Some thought not more than $2,500,000 would be needed next year.

The committee's action was taken on motion of Sidney M. Hays, chairman of the committee, representing the United Protective Improvement Association, also spoke in support of the resolution.

Estimate of Yield. Of the special tax measures enacted since the crisis campaign of last February, the tax on vehicles using the Municipal Bridge highway has been the most productive, and is estimated to yield $100,000 a year. The additional tax of one-half cent a gallon on gasoline is estimated to yield $400,000 a year.

Other special taxes are those levied upon barbers, home-work allies, trust companies, surety companies, undertakers, clothing manufacturers, slot machines and real estate dealers.

Harry B. Wallace, chairman of the Campaign Committee, said the measure for extending the special taxes had been approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

The committee adopted a resolution calling on the citizens of St. Louis to conduct a joint relief campaign, not later than December, which shall provide the same measure of relief for 1933 as for 1932.

Continuation of the present relief agencies should be provided for, the committee stated. It named the United Protective Improvement Association, Archibishop's Fund and St. Vincent de Paul Society as necessary agencies. Maestre, Aaron S. Taub and William L. Igoe were appointed a committee to arrange a campaign organization.

Full Committee Approves. Following the Executive Committee meeting, the full Campaign Committee met in the Mayor's office, about 160 of the 400 appointed members being present. Mayor Miller made an address, setting forth the need for relief measures for the coming winter.

"In spite of any improvement that may come in employment and business conditions," the Mayor said, "there will be more genuine distress among our citizens this winter than in previous winters."

Citizens' Campaign Committee Votes to Meet Objection Raised by Real Estate Exchange.

B. F. DICKMANN APPROVES ACTION

Agreement Reached to Sell Only as Much of Proposed $4,600,000 Issue as Is Needed.

The Citizens' Bond Issue Campaign Committee, in charge of the campaign for the $4,600,000 relief bond proposal at the election Nov. 8, voted today in favor of continuing the present special taxes as long as they may be needed to pay off principal and interest of the bonds.

At the request of the executive committee of the Campaign Committee, meeting in advance of the main body, Mayor Miller promised to call the Board of Aldermen in special session to re-enact the special tax measures, which under present ordinances are in effect for one year only. The aldermen are now in vacation until Oct. 23.

How Plan Would Operate. While the proposed bonds would mature in five to 20 years from date of issue, continuance of the special taxes would not be necessary for more than a few

Eight Unemployed Men in Canada Apparently in Agreement to Jump Into Canal.

By the Associated Press.
 OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 21.—Two unemployed world war veterans were drowned last night in what police say apparently was a "mass suicide" attempt.

Police fought eight veterans on the banks of Rideau Canal, near Parliament Hill. Authorities said all the men were intoxicated and attempted to hurl themselves into the canal.

Donald McLean, 36 years old, who served overseas with a Canadian battalion, and Don Clarke, 35, veteran of the Black Watch Imperials, plunged into the canal before police could halt them. Their bodies were recovered after the canal locks were drained. Police said McLean was leader of the group.

KURN DENIES CHARGES IN SUIT AGAINST FRISCO

President Declares Apparent
 Purpose Is to Hamper Readjustment Plan.

Charges made in a suit for a receiver for the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co. filed in Federal Court Monday by stockholders are denied in a prepared statement issued by J. M. Kurn, president of the railway company. The complaining stockholders assert they own 175 shares of the company's 5 per cent non-cumulative preferred stock.

Kurn said the allegations, which included charges of mismanagement and conspiracy with bankers for private profit at the expense of the company, "were so contrary to facts as to indicate complete ignorance or recklessness of the truth."

"We are advised by counsel," Kurn said, "that there is no merit in any of the suits which have been instituted against the company by holders of small amounts of securities apparently seeking to obtain some special advantage for themselves by embarrassing the company in carrying out the readjustment plan."

"The plan was worked out in negotiations with the largest holders of the company's bonds of all grades and of its stock. The company believes the plan to be fair and equitable, and more than a majority of the security holders have concurred in this opinion.

"No objector has suggested any other plan, and the criticisms of the present plan contained in the complaints in the various suits are wholly inconsistent with each other. If security holders allow themselves to be misled by the publicity given to the activities of those sponsoring these suits and delay the depositing under the plan in the hope of obtaining better treatment for themselves, the only result can be to delay or prevent the consummation of the plan with consequent loss to all security holders."

"The time for depositing under the plan expires Sept. 26, and all security holders who desire to avoid a receivership and to have the plan carried out, are strongly urged in their own interest to assent to the plan by that date."

 Golden Gate yesterday in a 33-foot ketch with two years of voyaging ahead of him.

Schramm, a graduate of Kiel and
 years ago in the ketch "Te Rapun-man, George Dibbern, 49, and a tiny spaniel from the Canary Is-touched at England, Spain and Portugal, the Balearic Islands and other Mediterranean ports. Then there were months in the Canal

 Zone and the South American Coast. From here, the skipper said, he plans to go to Hawaii, the South
 Sea, back to Los Angeles, Australia and the Dutch East Indies.
 From there the itinerary leads to the Cape of Good Hope, St. Helena, the West Indies and the American east coast again. Then, Schramm thinks, there may be a job some-

5 DRY NOMINATED FOR CONGRESS IN NEW YORK STATE

Republicans Select Three Others Favoring Change in Law—One Is Ex-Senator Wadsworth.

By the Associated Press. ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Five upstate New York members of Congress who have supported the eighteenth amendment were re-nominated in yesterday's primary election over opposition by candidates who favored a change in the prohibition law.

A close fight in the Thirty-seventh Congressional District, in which the renomination of Representative Gale H. Stalker was contested by W. Sterling Cole was decided today in Stalker's favor by the small majority of 133 votes. Stalker's campaign was based largely upon his advocacy of prohibition. Cole, while not committed to repeal of the eighteenth amendment, was on record as favoring the Republican renomination platform plank.

Other Republican Congressmen who conducted a successful campaign on the basis of adherence to the prohibition amendment were Frank Crowther in the Thirtieth District, Francis D. Culkin in the Thirty-second, Frederick M. Davent in the Thirty-third and Daniel A. Reed in the Forty-third. Wadsworth Nominated.

Three Republican members of Congress who won yesterday on an advocacy of a change in the prohibition laws were John D. Clarke in the Thirty-fourth, Walter Greham Andrews in the Fortieth, and Edmund F. Cooke in the Forty-first.

Former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, a leader in antiprohibition activities while a member of the upper house of Congress, was nominated without opposition by the Republicans of the Thirty-ninth District to succeed Representative Archie D. Sanders.

Prohibition did not figure in the Democratic ranks or in the Seventeenth New York City District, where Ruth Pratt was renominated by Republicans over G. Hiram Mann.

Of the seven Democratic contests for Congressional nomination, three were held in Brooklyn, where Representatives George W. Lindsay of the Third District, Patrick J. Carley of the Eighth District, and Emanuel Celler of the Tenth District were renominated. Each was backed by the Kings County Democratic organization, headed by John H. McCooley.

The other four Democratic contests were up-State and were based on personal politics.

McCooley's organization faced several fights for Democratic nomination for State Senate and Assembly, but the organization candidates were victorious in every instance. One who was renominated was John A. Hastings, who figured in the Hofstadter investigation into New York City's affairs, while William Lathrop Love of Brooklyn, the only Democratic member of the Senate who voted for continuance of the Hofstadter investigation, ran as an independent, and was defeated for renomination. However, he will go before the voters in November, as he has the Republican nomination in his district.

Massachusetts Republicans Nominated Youngman for Governor.

By the Associated Press. BOSTON, Sept. 21.—With only nine precincts missing Lieutenant-Governor William B. Youngman, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, today had captured the nomination, 208,630 votes to 177,126 for Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission. Returns from 168 precincts out of 1787 gave Youngman a lead of 29,504.

The same number of precincts awarded Gaspar Bacon, president of the State Senate, the lieutenant-governorship designation on the Republican ticket by a vote of 223,304 to 160,969 for Chester L. Campbell, a member of the Governor's council.

As the statewide count neared completion in the battle for the lieutenant-governorship on the Democratic side, John C. Swift, Milford attorney, had an apparent edge on former Lieutenant-Governor Edward Barry of Boston of 1435. This was the closest contest on either ticket. Barry had 67,943 and Swift 66,497.

Gov. Joseph B. Ely was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

Returns from congressional contests were delayed, but the nomination of Representatives John W. McCormack, Democrat, Boston, in the Twelfth District, and George Helken Tinkham (Rep.), Boston, Tenth District, was assured early in the tabulation.

Representatives unopposed were: Democrats, William P. Connery, Lynn, Seventh District; and William J. Granfield, Second; Republicans, Allen T. Treadway, First; Frank H. Foss, Fitchburg, Third; Pehr G. Holmes, Worcester, Fourth; Joseph W. Martin, North Attleboro, Fourteenth; and Charles L. Clifford, Barnstable, Fifteenth. Joshua L. Brooks, Springfield, was nominated by the Republicans in the Second Congressional District to oppose Congressman Granfield.

In Congressman Tinkham's district, the Democrats nominated John J. Crehan, Boston.

JOPLIN OFFICIAL SUSPENDED ON CHARGE OF MISCONDUCT

Mayor's Action Against Street Commissioner Follows Inquiry Into Alleged Irregularities.

By the Associated Press. JOPLIN, Mo., Sept. 21.—D. C. Schink, Commissioner of Streets, was suspended from office yesterday by Mayor Charles Patterson in an order in which he formally charged Schink with misconduct in office.

The Mayor's order is subject to final action by the City Commission after a hearing on the Mayor's 10 citations. Under the procedure as outlined this morning, Schink would be permanently ousted should the Council by a two-thirds vote sustain the Mayor's charges. The City Council tomorrow morning.

Today's action followed an investigation begun a month ago by the City Commission into alleged irregularities in Schink's department. Sworn testimony was heard over a period of two weeks.

PAIR TAKE POISON TOGETHER

Wife Dies, Husband Expected to Recover.

SMITHVILLE, Mo., Sept. 21.—A suicide agreement between James C. Wright, 62-year-old Clay County farmer, and his wife, Mrs. Dixie Wright, 59, was disclosed yesterday following the death of the woman Tuesday, two hours after she drank poison. Wright, who also drank poison, is expected to recover.

Mrs. Wright left two notes, one to a sister in Kansas City and the other containing funeral instructions.

DR. FRANK BILLINGS, NOTED SURGEON, DIES

Twice Head of American Medical Association, Teacher at Three Colleges.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Dr. Frank Billings, 78 years old, internationally famous surgeon who was decorated by two Governments, died last night at the home of his daughter after an illness of a few days.

He apparently had been in good health until last Saturday, when he slipped on a rug. The fall resulted in an internal hemorrhage.

Dr. Billings gained the rank of Brigadier-General in the United States army through his intense interest in military affairs. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal by the United States for his reconstruction work after the World War and the Cross of the Legion of Honor by France, where he was associated for many years with Louis Pasteur, the famous chemist.

He was a founder and former president of the Institute of Medicine, former president of the Chicago Medical Society and the Association of American Physicians, and the only man to be twice president of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Billings, born in Highland, Wis., was educated at Northwestern University and in Vienna, London and Paris, and Harvard. He had been professor of medicine at the University of Chicago, Northwestern University, and the Rush Medical College.

From 1908 to 1917, Dr. Billings was a member of the Army Reserve Medical Corps and in the latter year he became chairman of the American Red Cross Mission to Russia. He also served with the American army in France in the Provost General's office, and in 1918 he aided in organizing medical advisory boards for the army.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, said Dr. Billings probably had founded more medical centers and trained more great doctors than any other American. Among the institutions Dr. Billings was credited with having been instrumental in founding were the McCormick Institute for Infectious Diseases, the Sprague Institute for Research, and the Billings Memorial Medical Center at the University of Chicago.

DECLARES RAIL RATE CUT IS MEANT TO KILL BARGE LINE

Mississippi Valley Association Attacks Proposed Reduction on Sugar Before I. C. C.

The railroad proposal to cut sugar rates virtually one-half shows on its face that the rates "are not intended to be permanent, and are designed solely for the purpose of eliminating water competition," the Mississippi Valley Association has declared in a brief filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Cleveland A. Newton, general counsel, declared in the brief that the association would unqualifiedly support the reduction if it were designed as permanent relief for the public. But he pointed out that, under terms of the application, the new rates would expire in six months unless renewed. By this device, he explained, the railroads could keep low rates in effect on this barge line staple until the barge lines had been driven from the river, and then, when the rates had served their purpose, could allow them to lapse so that the old high rates would automatically return.

THEY'RE Milder
THEY TASTE BETTER

YOU would be astonished too, if you could see this machine that turns out 750 Chesterfields a minute... and every one as near perfect as cigarettes can be made.

But please bear this in mind. It is what happens before the tobacco goes into this machine that matters most. Rolling and packaging are important, but not nearly as important as the selection, blending and treatment of the tobacco.

That's why we keep telling you about the tobaccos used in Chesterfields. They're fine, mild, and pure tobaccos. We tell you about ageing and curing the tobaccos... about blending and cross-blending them... because they are things that count.

Chesterfields are milder. They taste better. Prove it for yourself... Just try a package.

$4,575,000 OF WABASH CERTIFICATES TO R. F. C.

Securities Put Up for Loan: Court Approves $9,150,000 Receivers' Issue.

A $9,150,000 issue of Wabash Railroad receivers' certificates, for use in reducing the railroad's present indebtedness to banks was approved today by Federal Judge Davis.

One-half the certificates, Series A, for $4,575,000, will be given to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for a loan of that amount, which was approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission in August, and which, the receivers informed the court, has been tentatively approved by the R. F. C.

The $4,575,000 obtained from the R. F. C., and the remaining $4,575,000 of receivers' certificates, series B, will be placed in the hands of the banks, thus satisfying one-half their claims and placing the other half in the form of certificates. The certificates of both series bear 6 per cent interest and mature Aug. 1, 1935.

The bank indebtedness, which has been $9,750,000, was lately reduced to $5,150,000, by the payment of $4,600,000 cash which was on hand in banks.

After the payment now authorized is made, the Wabash will owe the banks the following amounts: Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., New York, $1,450,000; Chase National Bank, New York, $1,550,000; Bank of Manhattan Trust Co., New York, $500,000; Commerce Trust Co., Kansas City, $125,000; First-Wayne National Bank, Detroit, $125,000; Mississippi Valley Trust Co., St. Louis, $125,000; Union Trust Co. of Pittsburgh, $200,000; First National Bank of St. Louis, $300,000; Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., St. Louis, $200,000.

In addition to the receivers' certificates, the road's indebtedness to the banks and the R. F. C. is secured by two large blocks of the stock of other corporations. These are 258,929 shares of the common stock of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, being 21 per cent of the entire issue of that stock, and representing an investment of $3,725,200, and 1217 shares, or 24 per cent, of the capital stock of the American Refrigerator Transit Co. All this stock is held by the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. of New York, as trustee.

FIFTH MAN HELD IN JOPLIN FOR TRAVELERS' CHECK FRAUD

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Sept. 21.—William Bowen, alias Robert Larson of Washington, State, arrested here last night with $420 in bogus travelers' checks in his possession, admitted depositing a worthless bank draft for $354.10 in the Bank of Carthage yesterday.

Officers found nine $50 travelers' checks in one book from which 34 had been removed. The stubs showed they had been cashed in Tacoma and Kelso, Wash.; Portland, Ore.; Boise, Idaho; Billings, Mont.; Mitchell, S. D.; Sioux City, Ia., and Chicago. Bowen is the fifth person arrested here in connection with circulation of bogus travelers' checks.

NEW YORK OFFICIAL RESIGNS

Chief Medical Examiner Opposed McKee's Slashing of Budget.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Dr. Charles Norris resigned yesterday as chief medical examiner, a position he had held since 1918. Mayor McKee accepted his resignation "with regret." While no official explanation was offered, the New York American said the step was taken in opposition to the budget slashing program of the administration.

"The whole thing is picaresque," the paper quoted Dr. Norris as saying. "It is easier for the large departments to get $1,000,000 than it is for my small department to get $10. In pursuit of its penny wise and pound foolish policy the city threatens to handicap seriously the work the medical examiner's office is supposed to perform."

LONDON BISHOP URGES UNIFIED WORLD CHURCH

Suggests Plan at Meeting Celebrating Merger of British Methodists.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—A call for a reunited world church, taking in all christendom, was sounded last night by the Anglican Bishop of London, speaking at a gathering of thousands of Methodists who earlier in the day had effected the union of three branches of that denomination in Great Britain. "I hope I shall live to see another great gathering in Albert Hall (where the meeting took place), when, without any reabsorption of one with the other, a great reunited church, with the fire of the Wesleyans combined with the faith and order of the historic church, shall advance with new power and conviction to convert the world," said the Right Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington Ingram, Bishop of London.

"And why confine this reunited church to Wesleyans and the Church of England? Why should not the Baptists, Presbyterians, Greeks, old Catholics and at last a reformed Roman Catholic Church, all join with the melting glory of one holy Catholic Church throughout the world?"

"While, therefore, I welcome this reunion (of the Methodists), and wish you to go forward, I look upon it as only a prelude to the greater reunion in days to come."

The three branches of Methodism that consolidated are the primitive Methodists, the United Methodist and the Wesleyans. They were merged into the United Methodist Church.

Ten thousand representatives from many nations witnessed the act of union. They were welcomed to the meeting by the Duke of York, representing the King, who asserted that the union "marks the opening of a new era in the life of one of the greatest spiritual forces in the modern world."

Dr. J. Scott Lidgett was named president-elect of the new church, with Sir Robert Perks, vice-president. Sir Robert is the lay father of the union, having first proposed it in 1875. At the age of 82 he holds the highest position in the organization open to any layman. The new church has 800 ministers, 200,000 Sunday school teachers, 1,250,000 Sunday school students and about 1,000,000 members. Its total property in Great Britain in churches, schools, colleges and missions is estimated at $210,000,000 to $250,000,000.

FIRST OF 12 TRIED FOR RIOT AT CITY HALL ACQUITTED

Charges Against Two Others of Those Accused Are Dismissed by Prosecutor.

Ulee Ivy, a Negro, the first of 12 persons to be tried on charges of rioting at City Hall July 11, was acquitted yesterday by the jury in Judge Butler's Court of Criminal Correction. Shortly before the verdict was returned, charges against two others in the group, Nick Ruck and Jesse Woods, were dismissed by the prosecuting attorney's office.

Detectives at Ivy's trial testified that during the disturbance, which followed a Communist demonstration, Ivy stood in the front line of the crowd and threw bricks at the officers, who had started a tear gas attack. One detective, Walter C. Bauer, said he had seen Ivy hit Detective Sergeant William Forthman with a brick.

Ivy denied being in the crowd and said he had "just been easing west on Market street" at the time and had remained on the opposite side of the street from City Hall. He said police with revolvers ordered him away and that an officer beat him on the head and arrested him at Fourteenth street.

He was in a group fined $50 each in Police Court on peace disturbance charges arising out of the same incident. Those fines have been appealed. Rioting is a misdemeanor punishable by any sentence up to a year in the Workhouse and any fine up to $200 or both a sentence and fine.

COMMON-LAW HUSBAND FREED OF KILLING WOMAN

No True Bill Voted by Grand Jury in the Case of Charles Legnani.

A no true bill was voted by the grand jury yesterday, following investigation of the death, Aug. 7, of Mrs. Agneta Ganelli, 38-year-old widow, 6813 Lansdowne avenue. Her common-law husband, Charles Legnani, had been held after police testified at an inquest that he admitted striking her when she returned home and found her intoxicated.

Mrs. Ganelli died of a brain hemorrhage, according to the report of a coroner's physician, who found both of her eyes blackened and bruises on her face, neck, arms and abdomen. Legnani told police he struck her in self-defense when she tried to hit him with a chair.

BUILDING ACTIVITIES INCREASED IN AUGUST

U. S. Labor Department Figures Show Decline as Compared to 1931, However.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—An increase in building activities during August was announced today by the Labor Department, which reported also that July employment gains were well sustained during the ensuing month.

Based on reports from 352 identical cities having populations of 25,000 or over, the department said, "there was an increase of 4.8 per cent in the estimated cost of all building operations" in August over July.

In the monthly employment bulletin it said: "The improvement in the industrial employment situation revealed in the July report released by the United States Employment Service was well sustained throughout August with further increases in activities reported in certain sections of the country."

Homes for 2390 Families. The department said that building permits reported by the 352 cities indicated an aggregate cost of $17,187,673 for building operations, while the number of operations increased 18.7 per cent over July.

"Comparing August with July, 1932," it said, "there was an increase of 32.5 per cent in the number and an increase of 20.4 per cent in the estimated cost of new residential buildings. New non-residential buildings increased 21.4 per cent in number but decreased 3.7 per cent in estimated cost."

"Additions, alterations and repairs increased 16.8 per cent in number and 10.1 per cent in estimated cost. Family dwelling units were provided for 2390 families. This is an increase of 18 per cent as compared with July."

Under August of 1931.

Checking reports of 315 identical cities, the department found building operations in August were 25.1 per cent less in number and 70.9 per cent less in estimated cost than in August, 1931.

In its employment bulletin it said "building continued to lag behind the volume usually apparent at this period of the year." The more favorable employment signs were found in harvesting, canning, cotton ginning, textiles, boots and shoes and highway construction.

The department further said: "Various agencies of the United States Government awarded contracts during August for building to cost $11,936,074. This is an increase of nearly $2,000,000 as compared with July but considerably less than one-half of the value of contracts awarded during August, 1931."

Cotton Mills Working 73.4 Per Cent of Single Shift Capacity.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Increased consumption of textiles since mid-summer was met by greater activity of cotton mills last month as compared with July.

Based on activity of 2,500 hours a day, the average number of spinning spindles operated during August was reported yesterday by the Census Bureau as 22,896,024, or 72.4 per cent of capacity on a single shift basis.

This compared with 51.5 per cent for July and 57.6 for June, the two lowest months since July, 1924, when the percentage was 60.3. The August ratio showed a drop, however, from the 81.8 percentage of the corresponding month last year.

The increased activity of spinning was almost identical with the increased consumption of cotton during August.

RAIL LEADERS OPPOSE

WAGE PARLEY AT THIS TIME
Association Thinks It Is "Unwise" to Look Forward Now to Feb. 1.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—A. F. Whitney, chairman of the Railway Labor Executive Association, today advised railway operators that the association was of the opinion "that a wage conference at this time would be unwise."

Whitney presented the association's views in a letter to W. F. Thiehoff, chairman of the Railway Management Committee, which is considering the wage question.

Representatives of the roadside met with the labor leaders yesterday. Whitney said, to see whether the association would care to facilitate conferences concerning wages. A 10 per cent reduction in railway wages is now in effect and expires Feb. 1, 1933, when the old wage scale automatically will be resumed under the obtaining agreement.

Whitney said the committee "having no authority to enter upon such a conference, would not either seek such authority or encourage any effort to inaugurate wage reductions."

Whitney said many of the expectations which led to the signing of the present reduction agreement "have not been fulfilled in the past eight months and few persons will assume the foresight to prophesy 'the conditions' which may exist at the end of the next few months."

STATE LABOR HEAD CENSURED
Criticism for Political Speech at Jefferson City.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 21.—The Central Labor Union of Jefferson City last night adopted a resolution censuring R. T. Wood, Springfield, president of the State Federation of Labor, and a Democratic nominee for Congress, for making a political speech at the Labor day celebration, held here Sept. 8.

The resolution, adopted after considerable discussion, said Wood had been invited to make an appropriate speech on labor, "but converted the occasion of Labor day into a political gathering contrary to our intentions, and we regret that the speaker took advantage of the occasion to make a partisan political speech."

CAULFIELD SAYS STATE
MUST CUT ACTIVITIES

Declares This Is Only Way to Reduce Governmental Costs and Cut Taxes.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 21.—Taxes required to pay the mounting costs of government can be reduced only by cutting those costs, and this can be effectively accomplished only by abolishing some of the activities of government or diminishing governmental activities.

Gov. Caulfield declared in an address here today before the twelfth annual convention of the County Judges' Association of Missouri.

"The propagandist and the politician may attempt to lay the tax burden on waste," the Governor said, "but an analysis speedily discloses that the waste which is eradicated, at least, which our propagandists will permit of our eradication as waste, is but a small part of the governmental cost."

Referring to the difficulties of effecting economies and curtailing some of the multiplicity of governmental activities, the Governor said some of the individuals and organizations which demand decreases in taxes often are the very ones which demand more governmental services. These additional services, he said, can be paid for only with more and more taxes.

For Aroused Public Opinion.

"They are in favor of the general principle that taxes should be reduced," the Governor said, "but they believe that the reduction should be accomplished by a means which will not affect their own favorite governmental activity."

"It is the same as to almost every governmental activity," he added. "Generalization as to saving is easy, but to point out a particular activity for curtailment brings a storm of protest from an interested group. The Legislature and the executive can accomplish a considerable saving by simplifying the government, eliminating duplication and a sharp cutting of expenses. This the people should demand and expect."

"The most potent influence to aid in accomplishing these results will be an aroused public opinion, a citizenship demanding of the Legislature and the executive curtailment of governmental functions even though it may affect some favorite activity. The situation is not helped, it is merely muddled, by false charges and exaggerated statements by unscrupulous politicians. Our citizenship as well as the Government officials should look at the whole subject with a sane and nonpartisan view to the general welfare."

Hard to Apply Remedy.

"He said the tax problem was upmost everywhere."

"The remedy is as easy to find," he said, "as it is difficult to apply. The mounting cost of government, national, state and local, is the direct result of the people's demand for more and still more governmental service. More and better roads, more and better bridges, more and better education, more and better health regulation, a bigger and better National Guard, bigger and better service to agriculture, a pension for blind persons and a host of other increased activities which cost more money. The money to pay for these activities must be taken from the taxpayers' pockets."

"Even the most stupid of us now recognize that government is not endowed, except with the privilege of levying taxes, and all recognize that governmental services cannot be multiplied without increasing taxes. The converse of this is true—there can be no decrease in taxes without a radical decrease in governmental activities."

Two of the greatest governmental costs, he said, were for highways and public education. Recalling the difficulties in reducing costs, he said these were two activities which public opinion would not permit to be curtailed.

INDICTED FOR KILLING MAN

WITH SODA WATER BOTTLE

Second Degree Charge Against Youth Who Hit Wrong Person on Street Car.

An indictment charging murder in the second degree was returned by the grand jury yesterday against Clifton Stearns, 16-year-old Negro, 1612 Biddle street, who threw a soda water bottle through a Wellington street car window last July 27, fatally injuring Charles Zagel, 2203 Gambler avenue, Overland.

At an inquest following Zagel's death Aug. 8, Stearns testified he threw the bottle at a Negro playground instructor after a dispute over a baseball game at Columbus square, Tenth and Carr streets, between the Columbus and Gambler Negro playground teams. The instructor, Thomas Brooks, had boarded the car with the Gambler team.

STATE LABOR HEAD CENSURED

Criticism for Political Speech at Jefferson City.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 21.—The Central Labor Union of Jefferson City last night adopted a resolution censuring R. T. Wood, Springfield, president of the State Federation of Labor, and a Democratic nominee for Congress, for making a political speech at the Labor day celebration, held here Sept. 8.

The resolution, adopted after considerable discussion, said Wood had been invited to make an appropriate speech on labor, "but converted the occasion of Labor day into a political gathering contrary to our intentions, and we regret that the speaker took advantage of the occasion to make a partisan political speech."

CAULFIELD SAYS STATE
MUST CUT ACTIVITIES

Declares This Is Only Way to Reduce Governmental Costs and Cut Taxes.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 21.—Taxes required to pay the mounting costs of government can be reduced only by cutting those costs, and this can be effectively accomplished only by abolishing some of the activities of government or diminishing governmental activities.

Gov. Caulfield declared in an address here today before the twelfth annual convention of the County Judges' Association of Missouri.

"The propagandist and the politician may attempt to lay the tax burden on waste," the Governor said, "but an analysis speedily discloses that the waste which is eradicated, at least, which our propagandists will permit of our eradication as waste, is but a small part of the governmental cost."

Referring to the difficulties of effecting economies and curtailing some of the multiplicity of governmental activities, the Governor said some of the individuals and organizations which demand decreases in taxes often are the very ones which demand more governmental services. These additional services, he said, can be paid for only with more and more taxes.

For Aroused Public Opinion.

"They are in favor of the general principle that taxes should be reduced," the Governor said, "but they believe that the reduction should be accomplished by a means which will not affect their own favorite governmental activity."

"It is the same as to almost every governmental activity," he added. "Generalization as to saving is easy, but to point out a particular activity for curtailment brings a storm of protest from an interested group. The Legislature and the executive can accomplish a considerable saving by simplifying the government, eliminating duplication and a sharp cutting of expenses. This the people should demand and expect."

"The most potent influence to aid in accomplishing these results will be an aroused public opinion, a citizenship demanding of the Legislature and the executive curtailment of governmental functions even though it may affect some favorite activity. The situation is not helped, it is merely muddled, by false charges and exaggerated statements by unscrupulous politicians. Our citizenship as well as the Government officials should look at the whole subject with a sane and nonpartisan view to the general welfare."

Hard to Apply Remedy.

"He said the tax problem was upmost everywhere."

"The remedy is as easy to find," he said, "as it is difficult to apply. The mounting cost of government, national, state and local, is the direct result of the people's demand for more and still more governmental service. More and better roads, more and better bridges, more and better education, more and better health regulation, a bigger and better National Guard, bigger and better service to agriculture, a pension for blind persons and a host of other increased activities which cost more money. The money to pay for these activities must be taken from the taxpayers' pockets."

"Even the most stupid of us now recognize that government is not endowed, except with the privilege of levying taxes, and all recognize that governmental services cannot be multiplied without increasing taxes. The converse of this is true—there can be no decrease in taxes without a radical decrease in governmental activities."

Two of the greatest governmental costs, he said, were for highways and public education. Recalling the difficulties in reducing costs, he said these were two activities which public opinion would not permit to be curtailed.

Now you can really look years younger. Simply brush away those unsightly streaks or patches of gray. It is so easy to do—and at home—with Brownstone. Over 20 years of success recommend this proven method. With an ordinary brush you just tint your hair back to its natural shade—whether blonde, brown or black. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Does not irritate the surface. Actually penetrates the hair. Defies detection. No tell-tale "dye" look. Cannot affect waving of hair.

No need to guess. First cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownstone does not give your gray streaked, dull, or faded hair its natural color, youth and sheen, your money back. Only 50c.

SAYS WAGE CUT FAILS TO HELP IRON WORKERS

President Tells Convention Expected Increase in Work Has Not Followed.

Wage reductions to relieve unemployment, made by the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Ironworkers did not prove beneficial in getting any amount of building construction work started, P. J. Morrin, president, told delegates to the convention of the association at Hotel Jefferson yesterday.

Total wage reductions since July 1, 1931, amounted to 15.9 per cent, and unemployment has been a greater hardship on iron workers than on many other construction lines because of the irregular nature of the work, his report states. Morrin indicated in his recommendation to the convention that he opposed further wage reductions. Wages and other issues included in the report are under consideration by committees which will report to the convention.

The death benefit fund and the pension fund of the association show large deficits accumulated since the last convention four years ago. From the general fund $43,044 has been advanced to the death benefit fund and $28,512 to the pension fund. A special assessment to each member of the association is in effect to apply to the fund deficits. Death claims have amounted to $111,797 more than the revenue received, Morrin reports. He recommends that the convention consider a reduction in benefits or group insurance for death claims.

New methods of construction, and new materials replacing iron and steel were adding considerably to unemployment among the ironworkers, Morrin said. He recommended the delegates give "serious consideration" to this situation and suggested that work in different metals and the operation of new mechanical devices be studied by ironworkers.

Commenting on the equitable distribution of work by the locals, Morrin's report states that the "stagger system, registration and card index systems" have not proved satisfactory. They had resulted in charges of favoritism, lack of co-operation and that some members were permitted to "hog" the best jobs, Morrin said.

The president's report calls attention to "radical and poisonous" propaganda being spread among the locals, disrupting them and destroying their effectiveness. "I strongly urge the delegates to advise our membership to be on the alert against such despicable and villainous propaganda and activities," he said.

The convention is attended by 250 delegates.

STATEVILLE, ILL., PRISONERS EXPECTED TO MAKE AUTO TAGS

Number to Be Produced There Put at 400,000; Private Concern Bids for Remainder.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 21.—Indications today are that the $65,000 worth of machinery installed in Stateville Penitentiary for the manufacture of Illinois license tags will be put to work. Although a few details must be worked out, it is probable that about 400,000 license tags, or those carrying more than six figures, will be made at the penitentiary.

The National Colortype Co. of Kentucky has submitted a favorable bid for the construction of the others. There has been confusion in regard to the awarding of the contracts to the Illinois Department of Public Welfare, and bids submitted on the first call were rejected and another call for bids issued. William J. Stratton, Secretary of State, took this action because he believed the Attorney-General had decreed that a contract between the two State departments would be illegal. The Attorney-General has been asked to pass upon the tentative agreement now being considered.

The law states that union labor must be used in the making of the tags, but Rodney Brandon, director of the Department of Public Welfare, says that he has union men in the prison.

ROBBED ON STREET AT MACON

Kroger Store Manager Reports Theft of $589.

MACON, Mo., Sept. 21.—V. W. Carroll, manager of the Kroger store here, was taking a package containing $589 to the postoffice where he intended to purchase a money order yesterday afternoon. As he was crossing a street on a side of the postoffice, he reported to police, a man approached in a car and, showing a pistol, told him to get in. Carroll said he complied, and the man took the package, drove a short distance and put Carroll out.

The robber wore a light cap and black goggles, Carroll reported.

TIGERS' ELEVEN INEXPERIENCED, BREWER STATES

The advent of Frank Carideo, former all-America quarterback of Notre Dame, to the coaching position at Missouri U. has stimulated a great degree of interest in football at the State University, Chester L. Brewer, director of athletics, said today.

Brewer was attending a meeting of the Missouri Athletic Commission of which he is chairman but found time to fan a little football. "Every afternoon's practice is a show," said Brewer, "Carideo has a magnetic personality. He does football with his players. He not only tells them what to do but he shows them how to do it. We have the stadium packed for practice virtually every afternoon."

"We have a big squad of about 45 players out and the prospects are for a good team, but one neither inexperienced although we have a good nucleus of experienced men to work with."

"Bill, our star kicker who broke a leg last year, has entirely recovered and among other backfield stars are Stuber, quarterback, Battistoni and Johannsmeyer."

"Schick, East St. Louis boy, is truly a great end."

"We have such a big squad that we have decided to schedule some games for the secondary team which will be left behind in Columbia when the varsity is playing away from home. This team will meet Missouri Valley, Central, Kentucky and maybe some others."

"Football ticket prices will be the lowest in 20 years. We have reduced them all about 40 per cent. The price for the homecoming game with Kansas will be the highest, each ticket costing $2.50 plus 25 cents tax. The price for the Kansas game had been $3 for the past 20 years. For our three other homes the price will be $1.50 plus tax."

"Reduction in revenue is offset by some measure by a reduction in the cost of equipping football players which has dropped about 15 per cent."

Brewer said he had information that Kansas U., which like Missouri, plays St. Louis U., would have a very big team with a set of 20-pound backs, not shifty but very powerful.

AMATEUR BASEBALL GAMES AGAIN OFF

BATTON, O., Sept. 21.—For the second successive day, all games in the National Baseball Federation tournament were postponed because of rain today. The postponed contests will be played in doubleheaders tomorrow and Friday.

Horse Wins, Owner Dies

SAN LUIS, Argentina, Sept. 21.—Felix Nieves' horse ran what appeared from the stands to be a dead heat in the Sunday afternoon race at the municipal hippodrome, but the judges decided Nieves' horse had won an untimed to congratulate the excited owner. He had dropped dead.

The Year's Best Trade

WHEN Kress does come back, the Sox will feel relieved. At present, unless the spirit of Santa Claus moves them, the manager of the Sox must feel embarrassed every time Red is around. When the Sox acquired Kress they gave outfielder Bruce Campbell and pitcher Irving Hadley to the Browns. Either one of these players has proved more useful to the Browns than Kress would have been had he played at the same rate as at Chicago.

Hadley won 13 games for the Browns, which makes him the second high winning hurler on the Browns club. Hadley has shown starting qualities and will be one of the starting pitchers again next season.

Also, the Browns obtained something even better than Hadley—the promising outfielder, Campbell, whose value to the club this year is shown to far exceed that of Kress to the White Sox. Campbell has batted .332, has scored 79 runs since joining the team, and has driven in 33 tallies. He has made 158 hits this year and has a home-run wallop. Observers report that he is really a fine young prospect.

All of which seems to indicate that the Browns got relatively more for what they gave in the Kress deal than any other trader in the major can point to in any of the year's swaps.

A Pitching Stump

THESE Browns owners, as the season nears its close, can congratulate themselves on having grown in several particulars over the previous season.

They have rounded out a great infield through the acquisition of Scharen and the further development of both Burns and Levey in hitting. They have added one proved young outfielder and another who appears a good prospect—Debs Garma. And they have picked up a good pitcher in Hadley.

But the gains are offset in some respects by losses. The pitching staff seems to have to be reorganized. The club had a fair hitting punch, and yet its veteran pitchers could not carry on consistently.

Gray seems definitely back in the relief division. Hebert failed to fulfill in any degree the promise of one early game against the Tigers, which he lost. He has scored only one victory this season. Stewart did about as well as usual. Coffman fell down completely and had to be traded. Blaholder was hot and cold by turns and is likely to be no more so next year, as Father Time begins to take a hand in matters.

New Talent Needed

IN short, the club is in a tight spot for starting pitchers, and needs new timber badly in this department. At least that is the judgment of some side-line observers. The figures tell a plain story.

Probably a couple of important changes will be made this winter and some old faces will be replaced by new ones. If Connie Mack doesn't like Simmons and Earnshaw, Phil Ball might be persuaded to take them. The only difficulty would be to find the purchase price.

In this particular everything is blue at Sportman's Park, except the ledger, which is all red.

"Most Valuable" Manager

AMONG the standouts of a season in baseball, observe Mr. Burton Shotton, former Brownie and subsequently Sunday manager of the Cardinals, in the days when Branch Rickey was pilot.

In Mr. Shotton you behold a rival of Thurston, the great Hermann and the other celebrities famed for producing rabbits from places where no rabbits grow. Shotton, in the short space of three years, has produced better than that. He has made stars grow on his baseball diamonds, with nothing more important to plant than a few kind words.

When Shotton took charge of the Philadelphia Nationals, Art Fister had a collection of crows. Last place was the proper cell for them. But by judicious transfers and by maintaining friendly relations with Cardinals and other owners of baseball talent, Shotton has developed, in a comparatively brief time, a team which should finish inside the world series post—possibly third.

It is a club which includes some of the most noted stars of the day—Klein, Hurst, Whitney and Virgil Davis—all of whom receive frequent "bailouts" by Babe Ruth contest fans, and which has gradually improved its pitching staff to a point where it really has a fair defense. Three years ago Shotton did not have a pitcher worth the name.

If major league baseball wants to establish a new trophy, one celebrating the merits of the manager who has been most valuable to his club, our ballot will go to Burton Shotton.

ST. MARY'S ELEVEN TO CHANGE COLORS FOR THREE 1932 GAMES

SANTA CLARA, Cal., Sept. 21.—New and lighter football equipment will be worn by Santa Clara's eleven this year. Likewise, the Broncos will display an assortment of colors. They'll wear white against California, blue against Stanford and their traditional red against St. Mary's.

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Strange Case of Mr. Kress. GREENLAND is moving upstream. The old site of Albion is gradually sinking into the North Sea. And so, of course, it should occasion no surprise when we mention that Red Kress' head is still shrinking.

Only one short year ago such a thing seemed impossible. The skull of Red appeared at that time unchangeably solid. Red's knob was both large and haughty. It refused terms from the club and it decided to arbitrate. Eventually it bowed under compulsion of automatic baseball law.

But Red's hatter probably could tell a harrowing story of how the old miss no longer fit. We haven't the story direct from him, but there is every reason to believe that Red's top piece has been relieved of what ever ago may have enlarged it. That's because Kress, after having estimated himself in such large terms to the Browns' management is finishing the season almost in a tail-spin. His fall is almost comparable to that of Hack Wilson the previous year.

Humpty Dumpty

NOT having soared as high as Wilson, Red's fall was not so far. But it was plenty. To appreciate it we must compare between Kress' performance last year, and his work up to the present time this season. Here is the dope:

AB. H. R. HR. RBI. PCT.
1931 605 87 185 16 114 .311
1932 537 75 137 9 59 .260

That's enough to squeeze the ego out of any ball player.

Just what happened to Ralph is not known. He's a pretty good baseball man. He's still young. He is bigger, stronger and more formidable physically in every way, than in other days. He should have come through just as well for the White Sox of 1932 as for the Browns in 1931. But some little kink went wrong. He failed to register.

However, there's no need for Kress to get his dander down, or to suffer from a permanent shrinkage of the hat band. He was a good ball player for several seasons and, unless he is sick, he should be a good player again.

In fact, twice within five days recently he has made four hits in a game, including a home run each time.

Gray's Deal with Kress

more useful to the Browns than Kress would have been had he played at the same rate as at Chicago.

Hadley won 13 games for the Browns, which makes him the second high winning hurler on the Browns club. Hadley has shown starting qualities and will be one of the starting pitchers again next season.

NOMINEE DISCUSSES TARIFF AT SEATTLE

Declares Hoover Should Have Known Grundy
Schedules Would Bring Ruinous Retaliation.

By the Associated Press.
PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 21.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt reached Portland today at 9:45 a. m., to be greeted by cheering thousands. He left his private car at the Union Station for a parade through the city and to Gresham to visit the Multnomah County Pomona Grounds. Gresham is 15 miles east of Portland.

The Governor was welcomed to Oregon by Walter B. Gleason, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, against Senator Frederick Steiwer. Gleason met the Roosevelt party at Seattle, Wash., yesterday.

At Vancouver, Wash., a large box of flowers from the City of Vancouver had been sent aboard the train. Tonight, after his public utility speech, scheduled for 9 o'clock, St. Louis time, Gov. Roosevelt will move south through Salem and Eugene into California.

Last night at Seattle, Gov. Roosevelt made a brief speech to a crowd that filled every seat, the sides and window ledges in the auditorium and overflowed into a baseball park adjoining the building. There were 12,000 in the auditorium and 14,000 in the park.

Assaults "The Grundy Tariff." Referring to the Hawley-Smoot "Grundy tariff," as he called it, Gov. Roosevelt said: "President Hoover should have known that this tariff would raise havoc with any plans that he might have had to stimulate foreign markets."

Representative Willis C. Hawley, Republican co-author with Senator Reed Smoot of Utah of the Hawley-Smoot act, is from Oregon. "That tariff, as you in Washington well know," Gov. Roosevelt continued, "had the inevitable result of bringing about retaliations by other nations. Forty of them set up tariff defenses. These, in turn, affected commodities of the Pacific Northwest—peaches, vegetables, apples, condensed milk, hay and salmon."

"To remedy this," Gov. Roosevelt went on, "I have advocated and continue to advocate a tariff policy based in a large part upon the simple principle of profitable exchange arrived at through negotiation of tariff with benefits to each nation. If I am any judge of conditions, this policy will be initiated on next March 4."

This constitutes what I conceive to be a new deal in the restoration of foreign trade—it is the way of economic peace and stability to reasonable and sound prosperity. This measure of justice can come only through a revival of industry and employment.

"Not charity, but a chance to earn a living—this is the hope and demand of the men forgotten in the policies of the present Republican leadership."

"Dear, not a phrasemaker." This ended the prepared address. Gov. Roosevelt added, however: "All my life I have been, not a phrasemaker. I ask your help in support of liberal views and liberal measures. I ask in the name of a stricken world, I ask you to give me your help." Gov. Roosevelt's comment on the Democratic senatorial candidacy of Homer E. Bone, who was a Republican office-seeker four years ago, was interpreted as a further bid for Republican and Progressive support. He said: "The fight that is against weak and mischievous and insidious leaders in Washington and not against the rank and file of the Republican Party. Mr. Bone has paid me the great compliment of responding to the invitation that I extended in my acceptance speech to men of all parties and political belief to join me in this battle for a new deal."

Senator Clarence C. Dill, introducing Gov. Roosevelt at the public meeting last night, predicted that Washington "will give him the greatest proportionate majority of any State west of the Rockies."

Gov. John F. Dore declared that "today Gov. Roosevelt had a usual demonstration that met the veterans of this country put to the test. We need more than an

Campaign Sidelights

—By—
PAUL Y. ANDERSON

Of the Post-Dispatch Washington Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—SINCE the start of this campaign President Hoover has often alluded to his efforts to "co-ordinate" one thing and another. "Co-ordinate" has been his favorite campaign word. Government lending power has been "co-ordinated" with private credit facilities. Federal relief measures have been "co-ordinated" with local private charity. We have come to think of the President as "the great co-ordinator." But it would appear that he still has a job ahead in co-ordinating the statements issued by his political supporters. When Gov. Roosevelt spoke in Salt Lake City on the problems of the railroads, it was tacitly agreed in most administration quarters that the proper reply would consist in accusing the Democratic nominee of stealing the President's stuff. Accordingly, Secretary Mills pronounced the Roosevelt speech "good Republican doctrine, which was taken from President Hoover's last message to Congress." Secretary Doak declared that "President Hoover already has recommended to Congress the very plan which Gov. Roosevelt has now adopted as his own." And Representative Snell announced that "Gov. Roosevelt is finally making progress—the first constructive suggestion he has made was lifted bodily from the President's message to Congress."

All very well. Not a dissenting note thus far. But in the midst of it Senator Hatfield of West Virginia, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, emerged from the White House and handed to reporters a prepared statement in which he commented on the Roosevelt proposals as follows: "This is not presidential stuff. It is the kind of economic nonsense which you would expect to hear from a fanciful dreamer. Every time the Democratic nominee speaks he unlooses another gaudy butterfly, of which this is an example." The need for co-ordination, as the President has well said, "was never greater."

Defeat of Crisp and His Course in House.

COPIOUS tears have been shed over the defeat of Representative Charles Crisp of Georgia for the Democratic nomination for Senator from Georgia, at the hands of the youthful Gov. Russell. It has been said that the House of Representatives has lost a pillar of strength and that the Democratic party has been deprived of a shining statesman. Most of these lamentations seem to be inspired by the fact that Mr. Crisp's father was a Speaker of the House, and that Mr. Crisp, while acting chairman of the Ways and Means Committee during the last session of Congress, sponsored the sales tax and frequently arose to beat his breast and decant on the singularly fine texture of his own patriotism.

There are some, however, who will recall Congressman Crisp for other achievements. First, they will recall him as the gentleman who violated his insidious cash payment of the bonus. Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate, has replied, in answer to an inquiry, that he favors relief of the unemployed generally, without regard for previous military service. Thus far "Friendly Frank" has benefited politically from the veterans' antagonism to Hoover without stating his own position. Persons who profess to be well informed give the assurance that he will do so soon after his return from the West. They further assume to say that he also will declare against immediate cash payment of the bonus, but probably will utter some cutting remarks about the treatment of the veterans who came to Washington. That would seem to be good practical politics, and to date Gov. Roosevelt has shown that he is Split on What to Do On the Stump.

PRIOR to the Maine election it was settled by the Republican board of strategy that President Hoover would limit his speaking campaign to not more than three public addresses. Now the Cabinet is split on the subject. Returning from his rather unpleasant experience at the American Legion convention, Secretary Hurley hastened to the White House to impress his chief with the necessity of making a comprehensive campaign tour, especially in the West. Secretary Mills—who had been the big shot of this administration and this campaign—would have none of it. He insisted that the President should seek to preserve the impression of a man working earnestly to solve the problems of the depression and permit his subordinates to do the speaking. In reply Hurley pointed out that 1932 standard bearers was a matter of speculation in political circles, but there was no comment from Smith's office.

It was said there, however, that the former Governor will probably make some definite statements about his attitude toward the presidential campaign either just before or during the convention. What the Democratic campaign leaders want to know is whether Smith will make any speeches on behalf of the man who succeeded him as Governor, then as head of the party.

Eviction Conceived As Campaign Move.

ALTHOUGH it has been generally known for several weeks that the eviction of the army of unemployed veterans and their families from Washington on the night of July 29 was conceived as an administration campaign move, the logic which underlay the decision has just come to light. The step was taken in the belief that the public would react to it as it did to Coolidge's action in quelling the Boston police strike. The argument was made that property owners throughout the country were alarmed about the safety of their possessions, and that the calling of troops to disperse the ex-soldiers encamped in the capital would convince the "substantial element" of the nation that a firm hand was on the wheel in Washington. The same logic had worked so well in the case of the Boston police strike that Gov. Coolidge was unexpectedly elevated to the vice-presidency. However, as has since been pointed out, times were somewhat different then. Fewer people have property now, and many have not even jobs.

'Friendly Frank' and The Bonus Question.

IT is quite obvious at this stage that Gov. Roosevelt cannot refrain much longer from disclosing his position on the bonus question. President Hoover is distinctly on record as against cash payment of the bonus. Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate, has replied, in answer to an inquiry, that he favors relief of the unemployed generally, without regard for previous military service. Thus far "Friendly Frank" has benefited politically from the veterans' antagonism to Hoover without stating his own position. Persons who profess to be well informed give the assurance that he will do so soon after his return from the West. They further assume to say that he also will declare against immediate cash payment of the bonus, but probably will utter some cutting remarks about the treatment of the veterans who came to Washington. That would seem to be good practical politics, and to date Gov. Roosevelt has shown that he is

SMITH TO BREAK POLITICAL SILENCE SOON, FRIEND SAYS

"Al" Going as Delegate to
New York State Convention;
May Nominate Lehman
for Governor.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—"Al" Smith's silence on party politics will end, one of his associates said last night, when he goes as a delegate to the Democratic State convention, Oct. 2.

"It is very possible he will be the one to place Lieutenant-Governor Herbert H. Lehman in nomination as a gubernatorial candidate," Smith's friend said.

Lehman is Gov. Roosevelt's own choice for the nomination. Whether this move on the "Happy Warrior" part will end the political rift between the 1928 and 1932 standard bearers was a matter of speculation in political circles, but there was no comment from Smith's office.

It was said there, however, that the former Governor will probably make some definite statements about his attitude toward the presidential campaign either just before or during the convention. What the Democratic campaign leaders want to know is whether Smith will make any speeches on behalf of the man who succeeded him as Governor, then as head of the party.

VATICAN TO AID IN WAR GAME

By the Associated Press.
VATICAN CITY, Sept. 21.—The Vatican agreed today to co-operate with the Italian Government in its plan to conduct a mock air raid on Rome next Wednesday.

The Government asked the Vatican to follow the rules for distinguishing lights which have been issued to the civilian population, explaining that otherwise Vatican City would be a lightning point for the "enemy raiders." Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, agreed that the Vatican would be darkened when Rome and also the extraterritorial buildings belonging to the Vatican.

Promoted to Rear Admiral.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Capt. Horatio Gonzalo Gillmor was promoted yesterday by the navy to the permanent rank of Rear Admiral to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Rear Admiral George H. Rock, on Oct. 1. Gillmor, whose home is in Creston, Ia., is now a member of the Board of Inspection and Survey and also a member of the joint Merchant Vessel Board.

nothing if not a good practical politician.

Some Illustrations Of Power of Money

WHO was it that said money will buy anything? Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, according to testimony taken by the Nye Senate Committee in 1930, spent more than $250,000 of her own money to capture the Republican senatorial nomination in Illinois, and at least that much more in the general campaign. She was defeated by J. Hamilton Lewis in the general election by approximately 750,000 votes. Senator Hattie Caraway of Arkansas spent $7767 in her successful campaign for re-nomination, defeating six male rivals, and nomination is tantamount to election.

URGES GERMANY TO RESUME PLACE IN ARMS PARLEY

Bureau Defers Discussion of Equality Demand
Pending Reply to Chairman
Henderson's Note.

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Sept. 21.—The World Disarmament Conference Bureau, resuming its deliberations without a representative from Germany, postponed discussion of the German demand for arms equality today so that the German Government might have time to respond to a letter urging it to continue participation.

The postponement was decided on at the suggestion of Arthur Henderson, the chairman, who wrote the letter to Foreign Minister Von Neurath. Henderson, reviewing the first phase of the conference, said: "We are now near a crossroads where we must take a choice between peace and disarmament or a race in armaments and eventual war."

The clerk read the recent correspondence between Henderson and Von Neurath in which the latter served notice of Germany's withdrawal from this meeting. Then the bureau took up the routine docket.

The bureau was directed, by the adjournment resolution of the conference last July, to prepare draft texts concerning questions upon which the conference had already reached agreement. Also the bureau was asked to examine points which require more detailed study with a view to reaching definite conclusions before the general commission of the conference resumes its sessions. The questions to be studied are: Effectiveness, national defense expenditures (budgets) and the manufacture of and trade in arms.

The bureau was authorized to create a special committee to make proposals to the conference regarding regularity, which might be applied to trade in and private manufacture of arms and munitions by states.

BOLIVIAN BATTALION REPORTED WIPED OUT IN CHACO CONFLICT

Advices in Paraguay Tell of Disaster to Unit of Young La Paz Students.

By the Associated Press.
ASUNCION, Paraguay, Sept. 21.—A Bolivian battalion, made up of young students from La Paz, was annihilated by Paraguayan forces in the Chaco sector, reports reaching here today said. The battalion was proceeding from Arce to Fort Boqueron, where sharp fighting has been in progress for nearly two weeks.

The Government informed the neutral American nations it did not favor long negotiations in the event the truce tentatively agreed to by itself and Bolivia goes into effect.

It said it thought its proposal for withdrawal and demobilization of troops was a more effective method than a suspension of hostilities and added that the 250-mile front in the Chaco region as well as the lack of communications and natural difficulties of the ground would make supervision by neutral military forces most difficult.

ASSERTS JAPAN NEEDS BUFFER STATE AGAINST COMMUNISM

Former Undersecretary of League
Defends Manchurian Policy of Tokio Government.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Dr. Inazo Nitobe, Japanese statesman and for eight years undersecretary of the League of Nations, yesterday defended Japan's Manchurian adventure as one of "supreme defense against the communization of the Orient." He said that alarmist talk of war between his country and the United States was not based on fact.

Dr. Nitobe was the guest of honor at a luncheon of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce.

"In Manchuria," he said, "it was necessary to create a buffer state between Japan and communism. Manchuria might have been absorbed by Russia. The Soviet Government has already carved out a communist government in Mongolia, where it is impossible for a Chinese to enter without a passport from Moscow."

"Unless Manchuria were helped she would have fallen an easy prey to communist Russia. Then the whole of China would have become red in a few years, or even months. Then what would have been the fate of Japan? And if my country succumbed to communism, what would be the effect on the United States? The Pacific Ocean would not be much of a barrier."

He admitted that in some ways Manchuria "might be called a puppet government."

"But you have similar experiments nearer than Mongolia or Manchuria," he stated. "If the United States had not helped Haiti, Panama, etc., you would be under the constant menace of unstable governments. Japan, while a monarchy, stands for Western civilization and is the vanguard of freedom and liberty."

EXPORT SUBSIDY IS PROPOSED FOR DANUBIAN AREA

Conference at Stress, Italy,
Recommends $15,000,- 000 Fund to Handle the Grain Surplus.

By the Associated Press.
STRESS, Italy, Sept. 21.—The Danubian conference last night approved in principle a draft convention recommending the creation of a grain subsidization fund of 75,000,000 Swiss gold francs ($15,000,000) to relieve distress in Central and Southeastern Europe.

After approving a report of the financial committee, and deciding to pass along that report together with one from an economic and agrarian committee to a commission of the European union for study at Geneva, the conference adjourned.

The financial committee recommended direct negotiation between debtors and creditors for settlement of short term debts, with special regard for the needs of the individual debtor nations, and provisional mitigation for long term credit.

This committee also referred to the creation of a fund for currency stabilization, recommending contributions from all states adhering to the draft convention. The convention was approved in principle, but Germany declared itself unable to give financial aid to the Danubian States.

The agrarian committee recommended creation of the $15,000,000 fund to subsidize the exportable surplus of Danubian grain—wheat to be given a subsidy of 40 cents per quintal, and barley and maize 30 cents per quintal. A quintal is 100 pounds.

Prefacing its report, the financial committee said the positions of the States of Eastern and Central Europe being "substantially different," it was decided merely to advance proposals of a general character applicable to all.

It was emphasized that a paramount necessity was the maintaining of balanced budgets.

"LARGE ENOUGH TO SERVE ANY... STRONG ENOUGH TO PROTECT ALL"

A Depressing Chord

IN the midst of the Post-Demarch: N his keynotes speech to the Democratic State convention, John H. Taylor of Chillicothe is reported as saying: "I am a man who is going to drive out the Hyldites and the Hooverites and take possession of the land of milk and honey and the great big luscious pie that belong to God's chosen people."

Consequently, the utterance was made in strict propriety. The occasion, the audience, the thought embraced—yes, it was appropriate, fitting nicely the optimistic tempo of the whole affair. How could it be otherwise? The street who is hearing so much about a new deal these days, the quotation strikes a depressing chord. Already, the party to which he must turn, if he is to be delivered from the present government, is blatantly planning a political grab-fest. Thus, the plight of the Missouri voter.

There are, to be sure, worthy candidates on the Democratic ticket this year. But the people here from Franklin D. Roosevelt, the more favorably are they impressed. Missouri Democrats will vote for Bennett Champ Clark, fully aware they are sending to the White House a man who is a proven cheat. In the event Tom K. Smith runs for Mayor next spring, St. Louis Democrats will be privileged to support a man whose public-spiritedness stands him head and shoulders above any other candidate. And the same may apply either party there are others.

“Unfortunately, if we are to obtain the services of these sturdy gentlemen, which the nation, the State and the city so badly need, we must also elect, because we have no other choice, the army of political nonentities who, with watering mouths and itching hands, wait to get hold of the luscious pie.

GANDHI'S "Force Without Hate."

To the Editor of the Post-Tribune:

WANT to compliment you on your printing Norman Thomas' radio talk of Sept. 14. It seems to me this was one of the most important talks Mr. Thomas has made, but none of the Chicago papers seemed to think it had any importance. At least, they did not comment upon it.

Your editorial, "Gandhi's Starvation Threat," however, did not do justice to Gandhi. The part I take exception to is the preaching of non-resistance and non-violence. Gandhi is very much opposed to the idea of non-resistance and says that our lack of resistance to injustice is what has caused the mass we are in. What he does preach and practice is non-violence. He is a Hindu, and his Indian word satyagraha, which means force without hate.

Physician or Layman?

TO THE EDITOR:—I have just received M. R. EMMENEGGER's letter in your issue of Sept. 8 is unquestionably fathered by an impulse pitifully unsupported by facts. About the only exonerating thought in his letter is that he is a physician, the thought of Dr. Elernon, Democratic candidate.

When our lawmakers created the office of Coroner, they evidently never have remotely considered a physician, and it is not surprising that they have decreed that the Coroner assume the duties of Sheriff in the event of that official's absence or removal. Imagine a doctor serving writs and summonses, maintaining a jail, and conducting a coroner's inquest some whose practice is so meager that police duty would even be acceptable, but on a sickbed or in the operating room I would not care to have a number of men, who are doctors, attend me with his mind burdened with infraction or enforcement of the law.

Let facts proclaim themselves above idle gossip and pernicious hearsay. In 1906 the coroner of this county was elected during four years of a layman's incumbency as Coroner, the taxpayers expended just $1680 for the performing of 161 autopsies, and there were no complaints. This is the best record of such. Further, that the present Coroner, a physician, in a period of approximately three and one-half years, collected $1720.10, of which $1220 was for 122 autopsies and $500.10 for extra sense, not hysterical distortion or misrepresentation, guide you. A man who

One-Man Street Cars.
 To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
 I THINK that an ordinance should be passed that would prohibit the operator of a one-man car from starting his car until he has made the necessary change and issued transfers to the various passengers.
 An ordinance of this kind would be stringent in preventing accidents of the kind that occurred at Spring Avenue and Gravois recently, when a pedestrian was killed by a Cherokee one-man car. The subsequent killing of a pushcart driver on the Eighteenth street viaduct, and the serious injury of a third man by a one-man car, are too recent to need comment.

Mr. Hoover said he was reconsidering his assignment plan. It was his original intention to observe the solemn tradition which enjoins a President for engaging in the rough-and-tumble of political controversy. He was to make, at most, three speeches, to share the burden of battle. Events have challenged the wisdom of that course. The Maine election, so noisy, has shaken the confidence of Republican leaders and reports from the various fronts of those who have been in contact with public sentiment are, in many instances, disturbing. Meantime, Mr. Roosevelt's present swing around the circle is enhanced rather than allaying anxiety. Further, a considerable doubt has arisen as to the wisdom of ridiculing the Democratic candidate's utterances, a tactic probably authored by Senator Moses.

The campaign policy for Mr. Hoover to pursue a course, a question for the candidate and the council of his party to decide. It is apparent, however, that the present circumstances are unprecedented, and, therefore, the traditions or manner of previous campaigns are anything but sacrosanct. It is indeed seeking a second term faced a situation such as confronts Mr. Hoover. What was done in the past is, it would seem, quite irrelevant. That is, manifestly, the political logic of it. What of the country? What of the thoughtful citizen, harassed as he is with doubts and fears, hungry for all the information he can get so that he can make the most intelligent, best informed choice when he goes into the voting booth on Nov. 8? There is a man who, we submit, should not be forgotten or respect for any custom, however old or respected. There is the man who, we believe, cannot and should not be ignored.

It is true to say that nobody else can speak with the authority of such actual knowledge of what the government has done to cope with conditions as Mr. Hoover can. If ever the country was entitled to account of his stewardship from the President of the United States, now is the time. Never before the obligation weighed so heavily upon a President asking popular indorsement of his administration to defend his policies, present all the facts, under conditions, analyse all the measures he has adopted, or proposed, and outline, as accurately as possible, the procedure he purposes to follow if again entrusted with the responsibility of directing the nation's destiny.

Only very real and imaginable truth, this ought to be a campaign of education, conducted in terms of candor and sincerity. If we are to have the end of campaign, Mr. Hoover must junk the dignity that both hedge a king and come out and make a fight from the shoulder fight of it.

one objection is being made to a drivers' license on the ground that it would operate to deprive a man of driving his car. That is based upon the assumption that a high fee would be charged for the license, whereas the bill proposed by the Automobile Club of Missouri provides for no fee at all. The legislature, if it passes the bill, might tack on a fee to pay for the administration expense, but, if so, it will in all probability be a purely nominal sum.

The purpose of a drivers' license law is to reduce accidents by weeding out unfit drivers. This is done by refusing licenses in the first instance to drivers who are obviously unfit, by reason of obvious physical and mental defects, and by revoking licenses upon conviction for traffic offenses like reckless driving, driving while intoxicated and causing accidents. An eligible driver aid to police in fighting gangsterism would be to deny a license to any person convicted of a traffic offense.

th more than 30,000 persons being killed annually in the United States by automobiles, it has been essential to take measures protective of society. It has been conclusively proved, by the experience of states which have such laws, that drivers' licenses acts are a potent factor in promoting safety.

VALUATIONS AND ASSESSMENTS.

The work, which usually means the working city, who pays and pays, has turned in our neighborhood of Springfield, Mo. The taxpayers' organization sent its president, M. D. Lightfoot, to Jefferson City to check on what the Springfield Gas & Electric Co. and the street railway company were doing. The State Board of Equalization about proper valuations for taxing purposes. These companies had applied for a 12 1/2 per cent reduction in the valuation placed on their plants for taxing purposes. The taxpayers' spokesman asked of the board, instead of a reduction, an increase of 20 per cent.

made the taxpayers bell over was the little bit of money obtained by applying for a license before the Board of Equalization. The Board was coming downstairs to the Public Service Commission and boosting their property for rate-making purposes.

The present assessed valuation of the two Springfield companies named is $2,500,000 for taxing purposes and $7,444,000 for rate-making purposes. This said is obviously too great, even allowing for the summary under-assessment of real estate and the intangible elements of value which public utilities are permitted to set up.

A serious checking-up of public utility valuation for taxation and rate-making purposes throughout the country would relieve the harassed home owner considerably. As to consumers' rates, the utilities of one industry which, under the state regulatory system, has been exempted from the depression, the minor exception of a loss of custom.

SCOTT AFTER 100 YEARS.

the hundred years ago today, Sir Walter Scott died at Abbotsford, on the River Tweed. From Mediterranean shores he had gone back to his beloved country in South Scotland, for the autumn glories were so well. To the south were the Cheviot and England, to the west Lanark and Burns' Midlothian lay away to the north, across purple hills and winding streams. Toward the east he had joined the sea. Seven years before, his publishing house had failed, leaving him $800,000 in debt. He had taken no sympathy nor had he asked any. Day after day he worked, filling long pages of manuscript, hurrying novels, articles, stories to the printing press, and waiting public. In three years he had paid off a third of the indebtedness. Health failing, he worked on. Seized by paralysis and apoplexy, he produced yet two more novels. Sent to 1852, came a little too soon. The burden was not entirely laid down, but he had lifted it from his shoulders. A truly heroic struggle had ended.

The Waverley novels may not be read today. "Ivanhoe," "Rob Roy" and "Marmion" may be passed over by a generation which never visits Flodden Field nor witnesses the tournament at Ashby. Yet Sir Walter Scott's sense of obligation and his determined fight against seemingly insurmountable odds commend him to every age, whatever its literary tastes.

Many Kansas Democratic leaders nowadays answer inquiries about the gubernatorial race by saying that it is entirely between Gov. Harry Woodring, their party's candidate, and Dr. J. R. Brinkley. Republican leaders at the same time say the race is entirely between Alf Landon, their candidate, and Brinkley. In both party camps are signs of mortal terror that the uncanny vote-gathering ability of the goat-gland doctor, who is running as an independent, will result in his election. His prowess was attested two years ago, when 153,278 votes were counted for him for Governor, though voters had to write his name on the ballots, and thousands of ballots cast for him were thrown away as incorrectly marked. Woodring won with 217,171 votes, and Brinkley still contends he was defrauded of the office.

Brinkley built up a large and lucrative practice, both by his goastland operations and by the medical feat of prescribing for patients over the radio, in response to their letters. Sixteen hundred druggists in Middle-Western states handled his prescriptions, forming in Kansas the nucleus for a strong political machine. An investigation of Brinkley's activities by the Kansas City Star and the State and national medical associations resulted in fastening on him the broad of "quack." The Kansas Medical Board revoked his license, and the Federal Radio Commission ruled him off the air. Running for Governor was his answer to the first attack, and he parried the second by setting up a powerful radio station just across the Mexican border.

Just now, the ex-doctor is making a whirlwind campaign, in his 16-cylinder automobile, with a gray-painted truck with loud speaker attached, a "singing cowboy" and the pastor of his local church. A finished spellbinder, he is prolific of promises—free schoolbooks, free medical attention, pensions for unfortunate, a lake in each county (for recreation and to change the climate). Despite these costly projects, he also promises lower taxes. All the innovations may not be forthcoming if he is elected, but Kansas may be sure of one thing—a shakeup in the Medical Board.

Brinkley catalyzes the discontent with both major parties, and the protest vote is his mainstay. Such a vote, if intelligently directed, is a salutary thing for politics, but a Brinkley triumph would have no such result. Aside from the vagaries of his character and motives, Brinkley, with little or no support in the Legislature, could bring only strife and retrogression. Kansas frequently has shown herself an eccentric in politics, but Brinkley's election would surpass any previous circus act in her career.

What will happen in Germany's world-renowned institutions of higher learning if Hitler gains power? The answer is given by Prof. Emil Gumbel, professor of mathematical statistics at Heidelberg, for 10 years, who received word, while attending a scientific congress in this country, that he had been ousted by Nazi influence. The Hitlerite demands, already granted at some universities, include the following, the professor says: Nazi students, in uniform, will use the front entrances to buildings, and there will use rear entrances; foreign professors, particularly Jewish ones, will use rear entrances; students will vote on whether the professors are acceptable to them. The caliber of Hitler's aims is indicated in this one phase of his program for Germany. Bigotry, childishness, incentives to discord, interference with sound institutions—all dominate its political as well as its educational program.

The withdrawal of United States Marines from Haiti by 1935 and the return of the island's governmental functions to Haitians, as provided in the treaty recently announced at Washington, were a marked modification of this country's attitude since its armed occupation began in 1915. The Haitian National Assembly has rejected the treaty, however, because of its terms relating to finances. These provide for continuance of American supervision of finances, customs and internal revenues until full payment of Haiti's bonds, a date at least 20 years away. "A fiscal representative," appointed by the President of Haiti on the nomination of our President, is to have full control over the country's finances. Holding the purse-strings, Americans, as the Nation says, would "remain the real rulers of Haiti."

Haiti should be grateful for the rising enlightenment that has led to this country's pledge to withdraw the marines by 1935. Nevertheless, her objection to the treaty is a valid one. Continued American supervision of her finances merely prolongs the sworn theory that our Government should guarantee the risks of its citizens in foreign countries. It is an inheritance of the "dollar diplomacy" which led to the conquest of this independent people.

President Vincent indorsed the treaty, fearing that, in the event of a Republican defeat in the election, a Democratic administration would adopt a less liberal policy. This, however, would seem to be a needless fear. The matter of justice to the Latin American nations has risen above party issues. Both parties will agree that errors have been made, and each may be expected to use its best efforts to right them. When new negotiations for a Haitian treaty begin, it should be possible to eliminate, or at least modify, the objectionable fiscal provisions.

After Secretary Doak had charged that Gov. Roosevelt's Salt Lake City speech was lifted from President Hoover's last message to Congress, Senator Hatfield emerged from the White House with a statement declaring the same speech is "the kind of economic nonsense that one would expect from a visionary or a peddler of dreams." That makes someone Kansas to Henry L. Doherty: Here's your hat.

By Walter Libbmann.

IN appraising the recent German declaration about armaments, it is perhaps well to remember that strong governments can move quietly, whereas weak governments have to make showy gestures. The Von Papen Government is certainly not strong. It rests upon the army, the bureaucracy, on certain elements of the old ruling class, and upon such public opinions as can be persuaded to regard Hindenburg and Von Papen as lesser evil than Hitler. In order to keep the Hitlerites at bay, the Government must steal the Hitlerite thunder. It must move for the liberation of Germany from the servitude of the Versailles Treaty of Versailles. And it must move rather rapidly, in view of the fact that another German election is impending.

It is not necessary to suppose that Germany is sufficient to account for the impotence of the Von Papen Government, and it is not necessary to suspect that, in asking for equality in armaments, Germany now has any sinister intentions against France or Poland. Whatever the danger since Lausanne would have been undone. Murphy, Mr. MacDonald and Mr. John Simon, Mr. Hoover and Mr. Stimson grasped the situation and acted decisively. They have preserved that unity which is the first condition of progress toward the solution of every world problem.

Given unity of action and time for opinion to accommodate itself, there is no insurmountable obstacle to a good solution of the German problem.

Germany's armaments are fixed by Part V of the Treaty of Versailles. This section of the treaty was drafted under the personal supervision of Marshall Woodrow Wilson. It contains every provision those soldiers could think of to render Germany incapable of conducting a modern war. It is a masterpiece of foresight. The Versailles Treaty is the model of perfect disarmament, and if all nations were ready to disarm and renounce war as a national policy, it would apply to all nations on principles which the Allies imposed upon Germany.

There, it is in the future rather than in the immediate present, except that under a very real and barbarous threat of death, they are to be reason to fear disorder and provocative incidents on the Eastern frontiers.

But it is safe to assume that for some time to come, the German Government will consist of adults rather than of irresponsible romantics, the German claim for revision of the Polish frontiers will not be pressed with such a fanatical insistence, and the German for excitement over the German gesture.

On the contrary, there is every reason for the kind of calm understanding and sympathy which the British Government in France has displayed.

They are not prepared to go nearly that far. Therefore, the Germans insist that they should be released from the treaty and allowed to have the same right to arm as all other nations. The German Government's to their claim is that the other nations are in the midst of negotiations to determine what shall be their right to arm, and until these negotiations are completed, the Germans throw off the treaty which binds them and start frightened Europe by actually rearming.

The Germans will wait, a treaty will be framed at Geneva which limits all armaments for, say, 10 years. If the German

The only real danger in the German gesture would be if it drove a wedge between France and Great Britain and between France and the United States. For there is

As for equality in fact, that depends upon whether the Powers can work out an agreement with the nations regarding the equality of proposals at last spring. These proposals call for one-third reduction all round, and if the Powers agree to this, the nations in France and Germany would agree to make only very moderate increases or technical adjustments in their armaments. It would be something which reasonable Germans ought to be willing to consider equal.

It is to be supposed that the great nation like the small nation, has its own special interests, and that the small nation is not to be sacrificed to artificial inferiority, and how unjust and therefore how unwise it is to make the attempt.

At the same time, the French have a profound concern with the maintenance of a legal form, because they see in respect for the legal principle the only way to secure guarantees against a sudden and violent upheaval of the European system. It was, therefore, not without reason that they insisted

They must know that the value of any agreement reached at Geneva depends upon its being voluntary and sincere. The German Government must be able to say to the French: "We have agreed to this because we have no other way of escaping our difficulties."

They need to obtain them with the good will of France. That is not impossible, and it is not impossible for Germany to be free of any amount of trouble to arrive at it. For only then will there be possible that sense of security which is the surest foundation of peace.

the German claim to deliver them from total support of the law and the procedure about which France cares so much.

Had Great Britain and Italy herself not been involved in France in insisting that Germany work out her claims through the disarmament conference, had the United States failed promptly to take the same stand, the French would again have been pointed, a premature peace have been put upon the table, and the French would have been driven back toward irreconcilable nationalism and a large part of the vast improvement in the European situation

WHATEVER Mr. Hoover, Mr. Stimson and Mr. Mills, on the one side, and Mr. Roosevelt and the Democrats on the other side, may say about it during the election campaign, the next question is going to make some kind of new debt settlement. The same is true of the international economic conference, which has been postponed indefinitely on Mr. Hoover's order. But it is a national disgrace that such a matter be postponed and that next year prosperity measures which are needed now.

WE are not so sure the farmer has been helped by a square deal. It looks to us now as if some of the blows he has received were under the guise of helping him.

Look to the Federal Land Banks and the Federal Farm Loan Administration. They have been waiting up some 20 years ago about farmers wanting to pay high interest on short-term loans. They wanted long-term loans at a rate that a struggling young farmer could buy. But they waited too long. The interest on the short-term loans has risen to a point where the farmer is almost unable to get a loan. The Federal Farm Loan Administration has shown itself to be almost a curse.

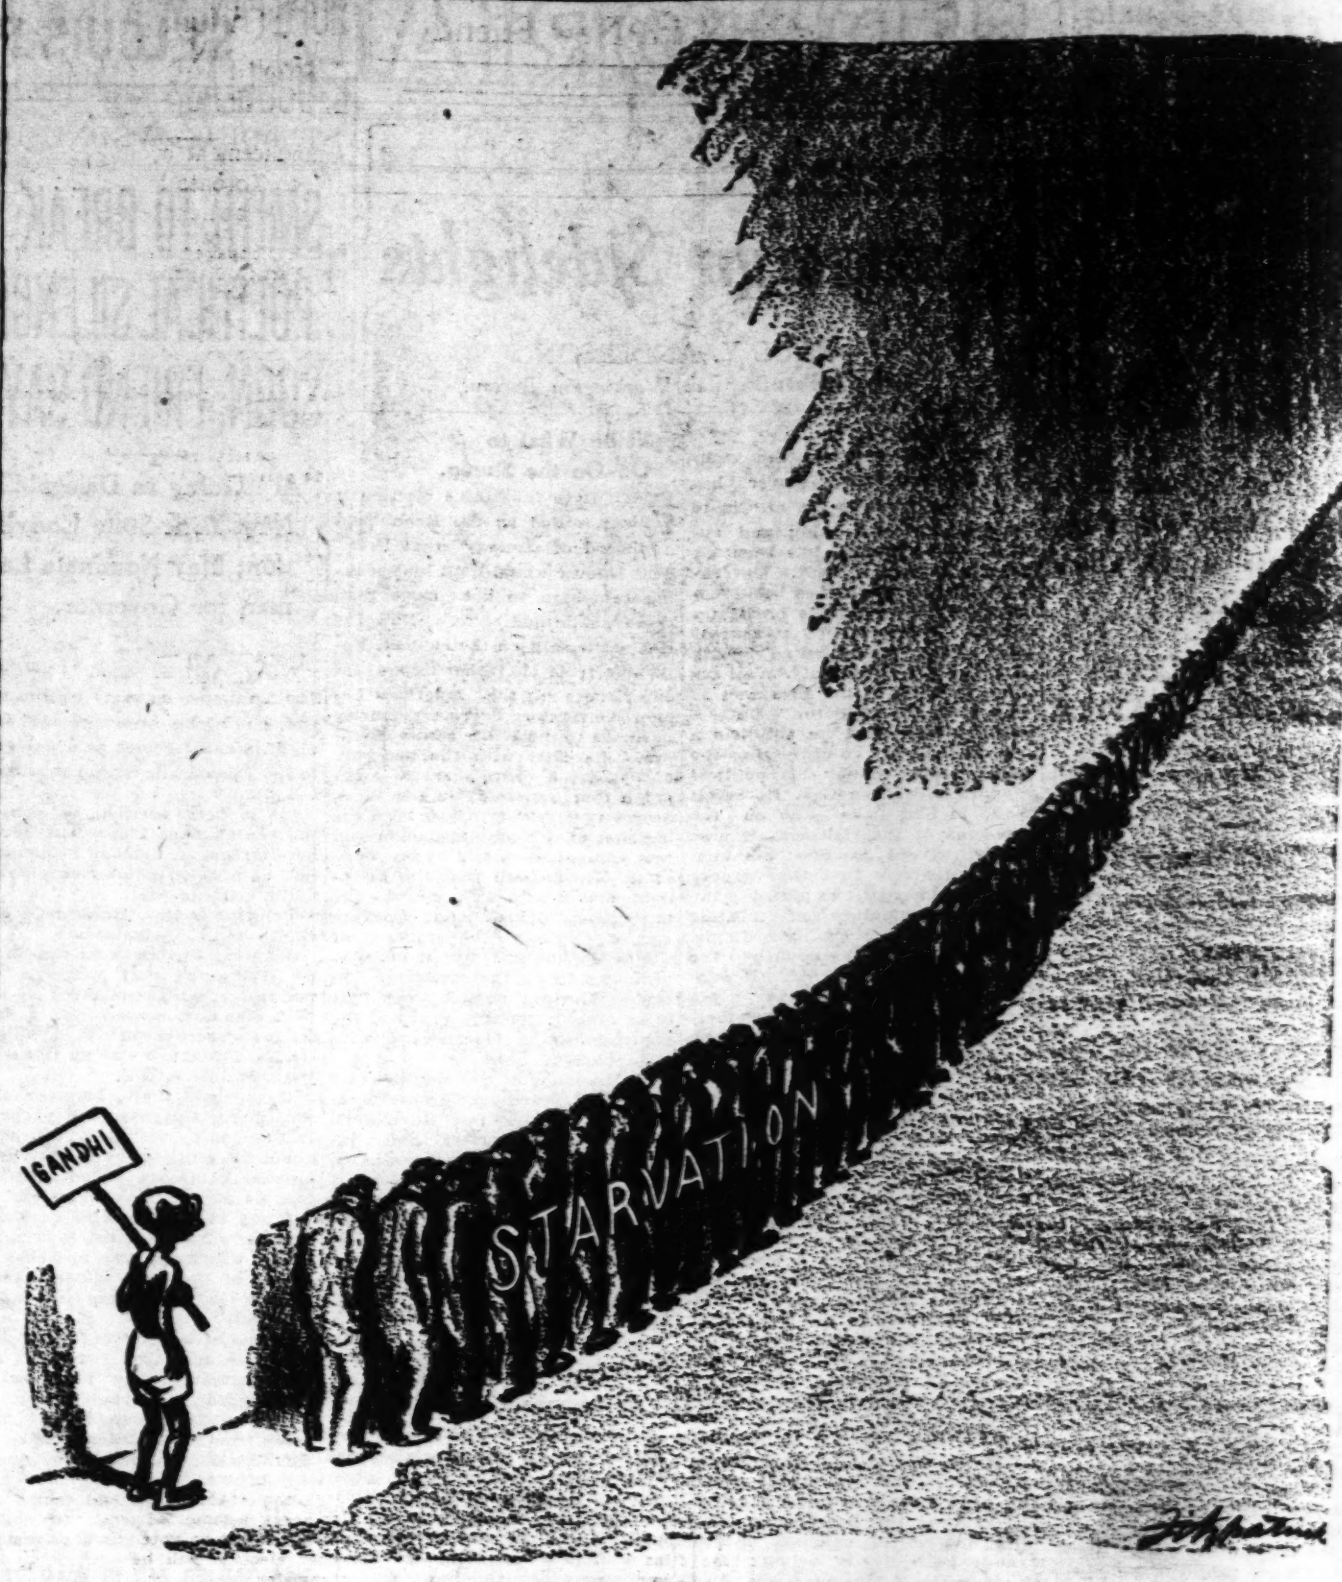

Cheap money made them desire to see more land, and the wave to buy sent prices to better prices. Of course, was sent prices to a farm, and the farmer was able to get a loan. But the farmer under disguise was consumed by the rise in price of land. Cheap money for the purchase of land means an increased demand for land and higher land, so that the farmer is largely taken up by the increase in price.

There was the great wave for educating the farmers. Colleges of agriculture have sprung up in the past 30 years and have doubled and trebled. The idea was to educate the farmers; teach him about soil, about fertility and how to use it, about drainage. New machinery, new methods, new farms and all of that were placed before the farm youths. And now the farmers are realizing such a surplus that they would starve to death if it were not that they are bringing it to market. They are getting rich. Drainage districts to reclaim land and to create reservoirs for vast areas and movements of the past three decades of more. And there is more land now than is being cultivated. A man who should know something about such things, should know that the State of Texas, under modern intensive system of agriculture, could raise enough for the United States. And still we want more land.

We are going through an era of deep economic depression. We are buying of cotton and wheat at low prices. Why furnish seed when over production is on every hand? Locally, we are not considered as a national problem when struggling with surpluses, why plant more? Is the Government buying seed? It hinders the farmer from growing a crop. We have come to deny the logic of the Government attempting to boost or hold prices of farm products when they furnish seed to grow more, and build dams to increase acreage and production. Such a policy is little short of suicide. Every country that has been hit by the depression and is beyond count, seeks to increase production. The growth of the United States Department of Agriculture, the agriculture extension service of universities and farm organizations are standing witnesses of the policy of increasing production. They are all working as though the war of "Food Will Win the War" were in force.

And the farmer has been told that all this will help him. We do not think they believe it very strongly any more. Some of them, if this goes on, will have to quit. The more we raise, the more farm relief is needed.

We are pretty much of the opinion of a wise old farmer who has fought the battles of droughts and up-and-down markets, floods and diseases among cattle and hogs—that the farmers themselves have to work it out. Government has a job in some other line. Government has to be, often politically applied, is a nuisance to the few who are classed as but not ranked as, and have reason for doubt. These relief, so-called, is a sugar-coated pill whose interest is in the stomach.

STANDING ROOM ONLY.

THERE is no record that there were any heartbreaks or any social upheavals when Lafayette started St. Louis on his occasional rounds of entertainment duty back in 1824. In fact, the people who had known him for years ago probably proudly organized them. The insurrection was in the outs very not even knocking at the door. True, too, Lafayette did not know the city, being given a plain French Marquis's reception. He did not show that the "backside" or the Chouteaus or any of the other first families battled for he honor of entertaining him. He was taken in and by the right people and when they were done they left him alone to enjoy themselves to their heart's content. Some 25 years or so after along came the English Prince of Wales who, later, was to become King Edward VII. And the Desperadoes, who were cutting for Edward mixed up with the crowd and ate the 1850 forerunner of hot dogs with great relish among the crowds at the St. Louis Fair Grounds. It was during the preparations for another fair—the World's Fair—that the Duke of Prussia, brother of the then ruler of Germany, dropped off here and Society, with a capital S, began to take notice. Henry settled the matter of most entertainments by preferring to see the Duke as a guest rather than as a king, with a crowd of newspaper men and his visit passed without any social setbacks.

MINOR, but well publicized rivalry, came with Queen Marie of Rumania, whose second favorite author—she had written a book herself—was the compiler of the Social Register. Marie accepted the invitation to the party, but couldn't get around to some others but the differences which arose were soon patched up. With the arrival of the Grand Duchesse Marie of Mecklenburg, who was a good back, things got more serious. The League of Women Voters had brought Marie here and expected to keep her for themselves but a lady friend of mine, who was more or less, the visitor and person whose family trees had been planted in the soil of the Great Bull Market, were carefully excluded from her presence. There were heart-burnings, but no real break, galore over that visit.

AND now, some distance from the beginning of this column we must pause to mention a point which is that Prince Friedrich Wilhelm von Hohenzollern, who might easily have been called the King of all Germany some day but for the untimely death of his father, has come and gone. Friedrich Wilhelm, son of the former Crown Prince, arrived in St. Louis last week with but four suits of clothes, and he was seen in the evening attire in the outfit and not even a Sunday suit, all of which was somewhat in contrast to his great-uncle's wardrobe, for Prince Friedrich had 17 pairs of trousers and 12 gorgeous waistcoats with him in 1903. Almost before one certain social set was aware that the former Prince, now Mr. Hohenzollern, had returned, the rival Bridlepath Hunt Club had cornered him and from then on it was just too bad for the matrons and the boys and girls who sat in the shade of the apple tree or are they maple, and who didn't mind the St. Louis Country Club and decide social matters. The Prince was whisked away to ride, in borrowed harness, to the hounds after a synchrotron, and he was seen with his four suits and attend a dinner with the Huntleigh Village set; to change to his other shirt and trousers away the evening with the Huntleigh Village. The other side usually with plenty of food and curves and a hop to the fast one, was caught standing flustered by a series of fast triple trap races to Busch to Von Gonsen, and he was seen with his finger nails and remained away—it did not by request at least through failure to be asked. Were their another bit. But another day and some time later, the Prince, and some of his friends, the members of Great Perseus, who may be headed toward this country. When the next Prince, or a Marquis would do in the circumstance, arrives we shall see who will be the first to be asked.

Here in St. Louis

By H. H. NIEMEYER

THERE is no record that there were any heartbreaks or any social upheavals when Lafayette started St. Louis on its occasional rounds of entertaining royalty back in 1825. True, the people who made up Our Set here more than 100 years ago were probably pretty tightly organized then. The ins were in and the outs very not even knocking in at the door. True, too, Lafayette was not of the royalty, being just a plain French Marquis, but history does not show that the Lafettes or the Chouteaus or any of the other first families battled it out for the honor of entertaining him. He was taken in hand by the right people and the others were allowed to look on and enjoy themselves to their heart's content. Some 15 years or so after along came the English Prince of Wales who, later, was to become King Edward VII, and the Democrats had an outing for Edward mixed up with everybody and ate the 1500 for a run among the crowds at the St. Louis Fair Grounds. It was during the preparations for another fair—the World's Fair of 1904—that Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of the Kaiser, came here and Society, with a capital S, began to take notice. Henry settled the matter of most entertainments by preferring to see things, especially the night life things, with a crowd of newspapermen and his visit passed without any social setbacks.

MINOR, but well publicized royalty came with Queen Marie of Rumania whose second favorite author—she had written a book herself—was the compiler of the Social Register. Marie accepted some invitations and just couldn't get around to some others but the differences which arose were soon patched up. With the arrival of the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, just a year or so back, things got more serious. The League of Women Voters had brought Marie here and expected to keep her for themselves but a quarrel of Society kindpinned, more or less, the visitor and persons whose family trees had been planted in the soil of the Great Bull Market were carefully excluded from the royal presence. There were heart burnings, if not heartbreaks, galore over that visit.

AND now, some distance from the beginning of this column we must admit, to arrive at the point which is that Prince Friedrich Wilhelm von Hohenzollern, who might easily have become Kaiser of all Germany some day but for the war ambitions of his grandfather, has come and gone. Friedrich Wilhelm, son of the former Crown Prince, arrived in St. Louis last week with but four suits of everyday clothes. There was no evening attire in the outfit and not even a Sunday suit, all of which was somewhat in contrast to his great-uncle's wardrobe, for Prince Henry brought 17 pairs of trousers and 12 gorgeous uniforms with him in 1902. Almost before one could say "so" the visitor and persons whose social set was aware that the former Prince, now Mr. Hohenzollern, was in town the rival Bridlespur and the rival Huntleigh Village set, for the matrons and the boys and girls who sat in the shade of the old apple trees—or are they matrons?—we wouldn't know—at the St. Louis Country Club and decide social matters. The Prince was whisked away to ride, in borrowed breeches, to the hounds after a synthetic fox; to change into one of his four suits and attend a dinner with the Huntleigh Village set; to change to his other shirt and dance away the evening with the Huntleigh Villagers. The other side, usually with plenty of speed and curves and a hop to its fast one, was caught standing flat-footed by a series of fast triple plays Hager to Busch to Von Gonsler, and cooled its heels, bit its finger nails and remained away—by not by request at least through failure to be asked. Were their faces red? But another day and another bit of royalty is coming, some time. Already, it is more or less reliably reported, the snubbed leaders of the haut ton have appointed scouts in Europe to keep them informed as to the movements of Great Personages who may be headed toward this country. When the next Prince, or even a Marquis would do in the circumstances, arrives we shall see who will be invited.

At his home, his two boys are reasonably sure that no matter where he happens to go for the dinner, he will be in the house in time to listen to Amos and Andy with them. When Jimmy does settle down for an hour, or a day, or a week, in his office in the Bell Building, he complains to his secretary sitting opposite that "nothing ever happens any more." The man across the desk is another Jimmy—Jimmy Hatfield—who won the Bendix cross-country race this year taking almost an hour off of Doolittle's former mark. Judge to Refuse Decrees When Plaintiff Leaves State After Filing Suit.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 21.—Judge Benjamin F. Currier, known for his strict interpretations of Nevada's six-week residence divorce law, said yesterday he would refuse to grant decrees in cases where the plaintiff leaves the State between the time of filing of the complaint and the time of the hearing.

The practice of many visiting divorce seekers is to spend a vacation in California when trial of their case is delayed. Judge Currier's ruling was made after he had granted Mrs. Carolyn L. Hall a default decree of divorce from Claude R. Hall, Jasper, Mo. Mrs. Hall obtained the decree only after she had established that her absence from the State after she filed suit here Aug. 15 was unavoidable.

WASHINGTON HEAD
ON VALUE OF COLLEGEThroop Tells Freshmen That University Should Help Them "Find Seives."

Washington University freshmen, at the annual Freshman day convocation in Graham Memorial chapel today, were addressed by Chancellor George Reeves Throop, Dean George W. Stephens and Coach Jimmy Conzelmann.

Chancellor Throop told the new students that they should expect university life to widen their horizons and to overcome tendencies toward extreme individualism and liberalism. His speech was a combination of physical exercise and the value of team play and co-operative endeavor. Extra-curricular activities, he said, should be made auxiliary to the main objectives of university life.

"A college or university," the Chancellor said, "is naturally and primarily a place for the acquiring, transmitting and advancement of knowledge. It is not a Sunday school, a reform school, or a school for mentally deficient, though I believe a good many of the various types of training within the field of higher education."

"The scholastic and intellectual interests of college students are today much in dispute. There is much doubt that the thirst for knowledge fires all those before me. But if the collegiate training on which you are now embarking does nothing else, it will lay before you the fields, furnish the orientation and, let us hope, awaken in many of you the desire for greater companionship with those fields and subjects to which you are briefly introduced while here. If the function of education were not as broad as this, it might well be said to be an orientation in the ideas and accomplishments of mankind, so arranged and presented that it furnishes an inspiration for all who learn."

"If the intellectual interests, by which after all the value of our education must be largely judged, are on the decline, they are not so neglected because the sciences generally given, and so largely believed, athletics, social diversions, and other student activities. We must rather find fault with our present social life, and the distractions of the modern age, which make so strong a demand upon the time and interest of all."

"There is at the present time much talk of the value of education as a practical means of livelihood when so many of those who now graduate find no employment and no ready place in the scheme of things. Education is no panacea. It will not cure all our ills. It will not free us from crime, from poverty, from economic and political distress. It will give us a better chance to those who properly avail themselves of its opportunities and will give this in increasing degree to those who most sedulously follow its advantages. The rewards of practical life will be to the most diligent, the most ready, and the best prepared."

Dr. Stephens, dean of students, said in a short talk that the university expects students to behave as ladies and gentlemen. Although definite rules and regulations are few, the general tradition of the university must be observed."

Coach Conzelmann promised the students "a good representative football team, a fighting team, one you'll be proud to cheer for." He further advised the freshmen:

"Don't be the sophisticated, smart undergraduate who considers cheering and an emotional display beneath his dignity and intelligence. When Sinclair Lewis wrote 'Main Street,' the younger crowd of several years ago students looked at that you were a Babbitt if you pursued the ordinary course of life—raising a family, sprinkling a lawn, or reading a story of romance. That was something only a Babbitt would do. Then they discovered Menckens and all of them subscribed to the American Mercury and knocked everything. The tail end of that movement is still in the colleges. Let's wipe it out—let's cheer!"

BOGOTA MOB WRECKS PLANT OF COMMUNIST NEWSPAPER

Unpatriotic Publications on Colombia—Port Dispatch Over

Leticia Charged.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Sept. 21.—Charging unpatriotic publications during the "Leticia affair," a mob invaded the offices of the Communist newspaper Tierra yesterday, destroyed furniture and seized and burned copies of the paper. More than 2000 women paraded through the streets of the capital singing the national anthem while the Lower House was passing on second reading the measure authorizing the Government to arrange a credit of $10,000,000 for national defense.

It was officially stated that the Colombia Government has refused to accept a proposal for a settlement of the controversy over occupation of the port city of Leticia by Peruvians. The Colombian Foreign Office reply said it "cannot accept the Peruvian suggestion as to how we should act in the repression of Leticia, the movement being a matter of internal order." It said "troops will pass through Colombian waters," and will "exercise in Colombian territory, an independent act of national sovereignty."

(Leticia was ceded to Colombia by Peru in the boundary treaty of 1922. It furnishes an outlet to the Atlantic Ocean, 2600 miles away. It was seized by Peruvians and Colombian officials were ousted.)

Brother of Alleged Kidnaper Caught in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Frank Montague, indicted for helping his brother, an alleged kidnaper, escape from the county jail last January, was arrested yesterday by detectives. Montague admitted, police said, that he and a third brother, Stanley, aided their brother, Neil, to escape by having Neil and Stanley change coats. Stanley was left in jail in the place of Neil, and also was indicted for the escape.

Neil Montague, one of a band of men accused of having kidnapped Dr. Max Gocht and his wife, Georgia, last December, has not been recaptured, and Frank Montague said yesterday he did not know his whereabouts. Other members of the kidnapping gang have been tried and sentenced to long terms. Police said both Neil and Stanley Montague could be made to serve Neil's prison term.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN.

MONSIEUR DE BERNIS paced the high poop of the Centaur in the starlit, moonless, tropical night. His tall figure could be seen by the golden glow of the great poop-lamp as in his paces he crossed and recrossed the ambit of its light.

The wind had dropped at sunset to the merest breeze, but without changing its quarter, and with her sails spread to receive it, the Centaur, her steering-tackles restored and spars repaired, led the way on that southwesterly course which Monsieur de Bernis had laid. An eighth of a mile or so astern three tall poop-lamps showed where Tom Leach followed in the Centaur's phosphorescent wake.

As a result of the softened wind, the night was hot, and most of the buccanniers who now made up her crew were above-decks. They swarmed in the waist and under the boom amidships on which the boats were stowed. There slush-lamps glowed like gigantic fireflies. About these they gathered in groups at seven-and-eleven, and intermittently the rattle of dice in the pannikins that did duty as dice-boxes would merge into the noise of their chatter and laughter with an occasional explosive oath or the leud calling of a main. On the forecastle someone scraped a fiddle, providing a discordant accompaniment to a bawdy song which, though by no means new to the audience, had not yet lost its power of provoking coarse hilarity.

Monsieur de Bernis heard little and heeded less of all this. His mind was preoccupied, turning inwards, away from his senses, to resolve a problem with which he was confronted.

Towards midnight he came down the companion, and took his way towards the gangway leading to the cabin. Near the entrance to this, Wogan and Halliwell leaned against a bulkhead at the break of the poop in mutual talk. The fall silent at his approach, and gave him good-night as he passed them. The entrance to the gangway was a black cavern. The slush-lamp swinging there to light it had been extinguished, and as De Bernis stepped into the gloom he was aware—far his perceptions were now restored to their normal keenness—that something moved there very softly. He checked, to be instantly reassured by a voice, breathing a word with ghostly tones.

"Monsieur!" He went on, following the invisible and insubstantial Pierre who had stood sentinel, and who, he surmised, would have been responsible for the fact that the lamp there was extinguished.

IN the light of the cabin, after the door had been closed, the young half-caste's keen-eyed face with its prominent cheekbones, looked grave. He spoke swiftly, in French, his voice soft and liquid. He had been on his way to the deck to take the air, when, as he reached the entrance of the gangway, he had heard the voices of Halliwell and Wogan; and Wogan had mentioned the name of De Bernis in a tone that himself had been listening to. Pierre, he had gone quickly back, and had extinguished the light, so that he should not be seen. Then he had crept up to the entrance, and had stood there, listening to the conversation of those two. It had disclosed to him the treachery in the minds of those whom Monsieur de Bernis had in it. The intention was to let him guide them to the plate fleet, and then pay him his share of the plunder in cold steel. Wogan had disclosed this to ally Halliwell's grumbling at the fifth share which under the articles De Bernis claimed for himself. Halliwell had accounted the claim preposterous and was blaming Leach for having agreed to such terms. Wogan had laughed at him for being such a fool as to believe that the terms would be kept. De Bernis should take what they chose to give him. If that didn't satisfy him—and there was no cause to be over-generous—they'd slit his throat for him, and so make an end of an impudent swaggering dawcock.

Halliwell, however, was not so easily to be reassured. De Bernis had always been known for a tricky, slippery devil, who had a way of defeating brute force by artifice. He called to mind more than one trick that De Bernis had played on the Spaniards at Panama, and but for which Morgan might never have had the town. He called to mind that it was De Bernis who had found a way to lead with the herd of wild bullocks which the Spaniards had goaded into charging the buccanniers on the savannah. Halliwell had been there. He talked of what he had seen; and he knew the opinion in which De Bernis was held. It was not merely for his treachery that they called him the Toppant. In a tight place De Bernis knew how to supply just the little more that made all the difference to their sailing powers. Did Wogan and Leach suppose that De Bernis would not be fully aware of the possibility of just what they proposed?

"SURE, now, he may be aware of it. But it's the risk he has to take. How could he be helping himself?" "I don't know," said Halliwell. "I did, I should be as sorry as De Bernis himself. You'll not persuade me he don't know what he's doing, and just what we might do." "Why should he be trusting us to keep faith?" Wogan had countered confidently. "He's a buccannier of the old sort. They respected articles. And we'll do nothing to alarm him. Until we have the plate fleet gutted, we'll just be humoring him and suffering all his impudence. But if there's too much of it, sure we'll be keeping the score, so we will. And it's the fine reckoning we'll be presenting at the end."

And then Monsieur de Bernis had come down the companion and the talk had ceased. The Frenchman heard his servant out. He stood by the table, chin in hand, his face thoughtful, but neither surprised nor alarmed. "Bless my soul," he said, when Pierre had ended. "It is just what I supposed would happen."

His calm seemed to fill his servant with alarm. "But the danger, Monsieur!"

SYNOPSIS.

It is the year 1690. The "Centaur" sailing from the West Indies for England is captured by the outthroat Tom Leach, who, on board his vessel, "The Black Swan," has long terrorized ships on the Spanish Main. Passengers aboard the "Centaur" are Priscilla Harradine, daughter of the late Sir John Harradine, Captain-General of the Leeward Isles; Major Boggs, Sir John's middle-aged assistant, who hopes to marry Priscilla; and Monsieur de Bernis, a Frenchman, who is a Lieutenant of the notorious buccannier, Henry Morgan who reformed to enter the service of his King and rid the seas of pirates. Morgan has offered a reward for the capture of Leach. After setting the "Centaur" adrift, Leach murders the captain and crew. The passengers are spared a like fate through De Bernis's wit. He introduces Priscilla as his wife and the major as his brother-in-law. He then tells the pirate chief a convincing story about his leaving Morgan to search for Leach and exist his aid in capturing a Spanish plate fleet worth a king's ransom. It is agreed that De Bernis is to take command of the "Centaur" and lead Leach in "The Black Swan" to the treasure. Major Boggs, who dislikes De Bernis because of Priscilla's interest in the Frenchman, believes the Frenchman to be in league with Leach. De Bernis assures Priscilla and the skeptical Major that they are in no immediate danger. Later, Priscilla defends De Bernis against the Major's criticism.

He went on, following the invisible and insubstantial Pierre who had stood sentinel, and who, he surmised, would have been responsible for the fact that the lamp there was extinguished.

IN the light of the cabin, after the door had been closed, the young half-caste's keen-eyed face with its prominent cheekbones, looked grave. He spoke swiftly, in French, his voice soft and liquid. one of many. Nothing looked better at the races than all black, well cut and fitted, accented with white lingerie touches, jeweled clips and a two or three shirred for scarfs. The next figure in this group illustrates the frock worn by Mrs. G. L. Tetherington of Granite City. It was bottle green crinkled crepe adorned with rows of silver nailheads, a mode of trimming duplicated several times in the crowd. This was a two-piece gown, having a short tunic, leg-o-mutton sleeves and a scarf collar of white satin whose ends slipped through a horizontal slot at the front. A matching felt hat with a felt bow and bottle green and white beads close round the neck completed the ensemble.

THE costume of her next companion, Miss Dorothy Newburger, in white, colored crinkled crepe with round collar of white bias pique bands fastened together and tied with a bow at the back, dropped shoulder line, leg-o-mutton sleeves shirred into a tight, deep cuff and vertical tucks to the hipped ribs and snug hips, also had good points. The frock of the third little maid, Miss Roberta Ferrell, was distinguished for its large glass buttons, white pique collar, its material, black crinkled crepe and its puffed sleeves, accented pleated, giving them the draped silhouette.

The next costume, worn by Mrs. Frank W. Taylor, a coat frock of Burgundy ostrich wool striped with a darker shade, beautifully cut from a style standpoint for its wide armhole, draped sleeves and the closing of the bodice far over to one side.

In the group of rail birds, the wearer of navy blue, white short cape and printed blouse, is unidentified, as is also the wearer of the severely plain black crepe frock.

joyful at table with them yesterday. Madame was as merry as my sisters as a courtship from Whitehall and her brother mutes but for grunts, and this Bernis with his fine, fawning manners. Bah! I wonder the food didn't turn sour on my stomach." He eat ostentatiously. "Give me the wardrobe by all means, says I. I like to be at my ease at table."

Wogan slipped him on the shoulder. "And it's entirely right, ye are, Ned. And, faith, we'll let him know it."

So, presently, when De Bernis was returning, he found an Irishman awaiting him arrayed in sarcasm.

"Twas a fine notion yours, Charley, of the wardrobe for Ned and me. We're much obliged. So well do we like it that we'll not be troubling your lively madam and her hilarious brother with any more of our company at all. Ye understand?"

"Perfectly. You have my leave to keep to the wardrobe." And he passed on, up the companion, to the quarter deck.

The shipmaster and the lieutenant remained staring at each other a little dumbfounded.

"He gives us leave," said Wogan at last. "Did ye hear that now? He gives us leave. Glory be! I wonder if he has his match affoot for impudence."

Orange colored crepe tied in a bow at the back and in short scarf ends at the front and a twisted belt of orange. A black velvet hat has a strip of white at one side.

FIGURE 8 illustrates a good example of the new capelet, in this case of white bias lamb slightly draped and fastened with two large black buttons. It is worn with a black crepe frock which has touches of drawwork above the white pique cuffs, another mode of trimming frequently observed. The wearer was Mrs. Oscar Wibbing.

Below at the left, the costume worn by Mrs. J. F. Taylor Spink combined brown cloth with brown satin. A short bolero was buttoned high to emphasize the delectable close-about-the-throat effect. A brown satin pique knotted with long ends is a fashion much approved by the stylists. Next, the costume of Mrs. Spink's sub-debutante daughter has many good points. The fur trimming round the deep armhole of the short jacket matched a detached fur shoulder cape. The large leg-o-mutton sleeves, the double tabbed collar, the side fastening with fancy buttons, the small felt turban trimmed with a touch of bar-distinctive for its color combinations, worn by Mrs. E. D. Buckley. The short jacket is of white crepe, the high bodiced skirt of black crepe.

Outcast

AFTER a class incident in which a group of boys voluntarily collected money among themselves and paid for some garage windows they had broken there was one lad who appeared to be an outcast. Whereas before he had been definitely one of them, he now went alone. No one would speak to him, no one would play with him.

This had gone on for several days, when one afternoon he lingered in the class room after all the rest had gone. Suddenly he burst into tears, and poured out the whole story to his teacher.

He had been one of those who had helped break the windows but he had refused to pay. His classmates had not told on him but now they would have nothing more to do with him.

His teacher promised to help him but asked him in the meanwhile to think for himself of some way in which he could make good.

A few days later the boy confided that all was well. He had confessed to his father and the latter had permitted him to take the amount for his share of the damages out of his savings account. This he had taken and divided among his fellows at their meeting place by the old willow tree.

"But how did you think you would be able to get by without paying your share in the first place?" the teacher asked.

"Oh I thought maybe one of them would beat me up and then call it square."

It is interesting to observe that in this boy, who was perhaps somewhat less courageous and forthright than his fellows, the need to be punished for wrongdoing was not absent. He had only hoped to pay with a beating instead of with money.

the Associated Press.

ABOARD THE ROOSEVELT SPECIAL TRAIN EN ROUTE TO SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—Having stated his stand on public utility regulation at Portland, Ore., last night, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for President, was moving south through California today to San Francisco. The train was due to reach Sacramento at 3:10 p. m. and San Francisco three hours later.

It was a California swing, from Speaker John N. Garner to Gov. Roosevelt, in the Democratic national convention that nominated Gov. Roosevelt for President.

William Gibbs McAdoo, who announced the swing during the fourth roll call at Chicago last July 1, flew to Redding to meet the nominee and escort him through the State. McAdoo is the California Democratic nominee for United States Senator.

Tells What Hoover Hasn't Done.
At Portland last night, Gov. Roosevelt outlined his views on Government ownership, public utility regulation, and of President Hoover.

"Since 1928 my distinguished opponent has done nothing to enforce the regulatory sections of the Federal water power act," Gov. Roosevelt said.

"He has done nothing to block the financial operations incident to the great post-war development as planned by its promoters.

"My distinguished opponent is against giving the Federal Government in any case the right to operate their own power business."

Of his own stand, Gov. Roosevelt

Went on:
"To the people of this country I have but one answer on this subject: The natural hydro-electric power resources belonging to the People of the United States or the several states shall remain forever

"Judge me by the enemies I have made. Judge me by the selfish purposes of these utility leaders who had talked of radicalism while they were selling watered stock to

"My policy is as radical as American liberty, as radical as the Constitution of the United States. Never shall the Federal Government part with its sovereignty and control over its power resources while I am President of the United States."

Gov. Roosevelt's "Remedies."
Of his "remedies for the regulation and control of public utilities engaged in the power business and companies and corporations relating thereto," Gov. Roosevelt declared for—

Full publicity as to all capital

Issues of stocks, bonds and other securities; liabilities and indebtedness capital investment; and frequent information as to gross and net earnings; in other words, let's turn on the light.

Publicity on stock ownership of stocks and bonds and other securities, and this is a new one, the stock and other interests of all officers and directors.

Publicity with respect to all intercompany contracts and ser-

Regulation and control of holding companies by Federal Power Commission and the same publicity with regard to such holding companies as provided for the operating companies.

Co-operation of Federal Power Commission with public utilities commissions of the several states obtaining information and data pertaining to the regulation and control of such public utilities.

Regulation and control of the issues of stocks and bonds and other securities on the principle of prudent investment only.
